CHINESE LOCAL OFFICIALS BOW TO TOKYO DEMANDS, AGREE TO DISMISS OFFICERS AND HELP COMBAT REDS

Battleship Royal Oak and Destroyer Basilisk Off at Full Speed on Secret Orders a Few Hours After Report Is Received

INSURGENTS SMASH AT MADRID'S RING

Loyalists Announce 18 Enemy Planes Shot Down in Major Battle; War Enters 2d Year.

LONDON, July 18.—(P)—The admiralty announced today the British merchant ship Candeston Castle, famous as a blockade runner under the name of Seven Seas Spray, had been "captured by an insurgent warship inside Spanish territorial waters."

A few hours after the merchantman's capture Saturday morning, the British battleship Royal Oak and the destroyer Basilisk sailed from St. Jean De Luz, France. The Basilisk had been under orders to leave Spanish waters Saturday night, but at 4:45 p. m. she received sudden orders to sail immediately. Patrols went through the port rounding up her crew, and at 5:45, after much hooting and whistling, the destroyer started off in the direction of the Spanish coast at full speed.

Officers Catch Ship.
The Royal Oak left just as suddenly at 8 p. m. Saturday, while five of her officers were still ashore. This group took a speedboat and overtook the battleship. Officers at St. Jean De Luz expressed belief these movements were connected with the capture of the Candeston Castle, but in London an admiralty spokesman said, "We see no reason to connect the two events." He pointed out the freighter was captured Saturday morning and the warships did not put to sea until late afternoon.

At the admiralty it was understood the Candeston Castle was being escorted by insurgent warships to Perol, on Spain's north-western coast.

First To Run Blockade.
The Candeston Castle, a vessel of 2,579 tons, won fame in April by being the first ship to run the insurgent blockade of Bilbao to carry food supplies to the beleaguered Basque capital.

The vessel's owners in London asserted she had been lying off Santander, only important northern port remaining to the Spanish government, trying to get in to take out refugees. She was said to carry a crew of 23 under Captain Herbert.

Fliers Forced Down In Path of Locomotive

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 18.—(P)—Two fliers narrowly escaped death tonight as their ship skidded, in a forced landing, on railroad tracks directly into the path of a Baltimore & Ohio freight train.

Engineer Walters screeched the wheels of his engine to a stop a few feet from the wrecked ship. He leaped out and with the fireman rescued N. Seaman, 28-year-old student pilot, and Thomas Urista, 18, the pilot.

Mother Leaps In Deep Well To Save Baby

WILSON, N. C., July 18.—(P)—A mother who saw her year-old son accidentally fall into a well near here plunged down the 90-foot pit and saved the child's life.

The mother, Mrs. Romer Glover, on a visit here, was talking with a friend on the porch and saw her son topple from the well's brink.

She ran to the edge, leaped in and checked her fall by clutching in the bottom with her child in her arms until workmen could be called from a nearby field to rescue them.

The child was not hurt seriously. Mrs. Glover suffered badly lacerated hands.

GOVERNOR HOLDS WHIP HAND IN WAR ON COURT REFORM

With Senate Almost Evenly Divided, Selection of Successor to Robinson May Prove Decisive.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 18.—(P)—Arkansas' youthful Governor, Carl E. Bailey, turned away from the funeral of Senator Robinson today to find himself the center of a national political struggle.

In his hands lies the power to appoint a successor to the dead Democratic leader—an appointment which might prove decisive in the deadlocked senate fight over the President's court bill.

Both administration leaders and foes of the court reorganization measure conceded that the senate was almost evenly divided over that bitterly fought issue, and that one vote might conceivably swing the victory to either side.

Crucial Appointment.
Bailey's appointment to the senate also would play a crucial role in the fight over the senate Democratic leadership, almost as hotly contested as the court controversy.

Half a dozen Democratic senators and White House aides, who accompanied Robinson's body to Arkansas for burial, conferred discreetly today with Bailey or his friends over the appointment.

They said privately that the Governor preferred to leave Robinson's seat vacant until a special election can be held, probably about September 14.

Oppose Election.
Administration spokesmen vehemently opposed this course. They argued that both the court bill and the leadership might be put to a vote within the next week, and that a senator friendly to the President's program should be named immediately.

After three hours of consultation with Arkansas political leaders, several informed senators said they expected Bailey to make the appointment within the next few days.

His nominee would serve, however, only until the special election, in which Bailey himself is expected to be a leading candidate.

Fire Sweeps Piccard Craft As Scientist Descends Safely

Some Instruments Rescued;
95 Balloons Rise to 11,000 Feet; Cover 80 Miles.

LANSING, Iowa, July 18.—(P)—Dr. Jean Piccard's first flight in his novel craft, buoyed by multiple balloons, terminated in a hazardous tree top landing early today.

The gondola of "The Pleiades," first sounding balloon lifting craft ever to carry a man aloft, burst into flames a moment after Dr. Piccard crept from it and climbed down a tree in an isolated valley nine miles from this north-eastern Iowa village.

He was uninjured.

The scientist said he believed the fire, which melted the metal of the gondola and destroyed the instruments within, might have been caused by the TNT detonation by which he cut away the upper half of the 95 four-foot balloons sustaining the gondola.

Was Up 6 Hours.
Dr. Piccard came down six hours after he took off, at 1:08 a. m., Atlanta time, from Rochester, Minn., 110 miles to the north-east.

Notwithstanding the misfortune, the balloonist termed his flight, an experiment looking toward an ascension into the stratosphere, "beautiful" and said he had learned much from it. He sought to determine the feasibility of using

ROBINSON REQUIEM MUFFLED BY RAIN

1,500 Jam Church; Scores of Notables Drenched by Torrent at Burial.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 18.—(P)—Joseph Taylor Robinson returned to Arkansas soil today, his final requiem muffled by the thundering downpour of a torrential rain.

Scores of the nation's highest, gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the man who steered so much Democratic legislation through stormy decades, stood drenched around his flower-banked grave. Lightning flashed and thunder echoed over the gentle rolling hills.

The dramatic conclusion to a funeral which was one of the most impressive ever held in the south sent gathered thousands scurrying to their homes and shelter.

Burial a Vivid Contrast.
The burial was in vivid contrast to the funeral rites at fashionable First Methodist church a half-hour earlier. There 1,500 persons jammed the auditorium to capacity.

A mid-summer sun blazed outside. Through a high-arched glass a shaft of light fell upon the flag-draped casket, before which the heavily veiled widow and a score of relatives bowed their heads in grief.

"I am the resurrection and the life," intoned the Rev. H. Bascom Watts, pastor, reading the funeral ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. "The Lord gave and the Lord has taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

The familiar cadences of the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," rose from a mixed quartet, accompanied by soft organ tones.

Prayer and Scripture.
A brief prayer by the pastor was followed with the reading of the Scripture—the 15th chapter of

Unidentified Amnesia Victim Repeats Plea for Clue to Past

He just lies there between the white sheets of a Crawford W. Long hospital bed. He makes no unnecessary moves.

He is the man who stumbled into the hospital steps about midnight Friday complaining of a headache and asking attendants to help him find out who he is.

At the hospital, he pays little attention to the constant stream of visitors that pass his bed, each seeking to identify him as some friend or loved one. Only when they ask questions does he bother to speak.

Always then he asks, "Please help me find out who I am."

Doctors are treating him for an unusual malady which causes "splitting headaches and fever." Around his head is an ice bag. His is another example of what amnesia may do to its victims.

"Wait until I digest the results," he said.

After reaching a maximum height of 11,000 feet, Dr. Piccard

RIVERS WILL NAME NEW BOARD TODAY

State Education Body Expected To Hold First Meeting Here Tomorrow

Governor Rivers today will name the state's new 10-member board of education and is expected to immediately call a meeting of the board, probably for tomorrow, to adopt new text books to be given to the pupils of the public schools free by the state.

It was announced yesterday at the executive mansion that the Governor would be ready to announce the personnel of the board today.

To Meet at Mansion.
The first meeting of the new board will be held at the mansion where the Governor still is confined, recuperating from his recent illness.

The chief executive today will begin a series of three X-ray photographs which have been ordered by his physicians. He will go to Crawford W. Long hospital this morning for the first picture. The second will be taken tomorrow and the third Wednesday.

The Governor's physicians announced that it would not be necessary for him to remain at the hospital after the X-rays are taken each day but did say that he would have to rest an hour or two at home immediately on his return there.

Bids Due Tonight.
Bids on the approximately $2,000,000 worth of books will be received by the state department of education until midnight tonight.

The department already has about 1,000,000 of the 4,000,000 books needed to supply every grammar and high school student in the state with free texts.

The new board will replace the old board which went out of existence July 1 under an act of the 1937 general assembly. Governor Rivers will be the eleventh member and chairman of the incoming board.

General Fergusson, Veteran Officer, Dies

NEW YORK, July 18.—(P)—Brigadier General Frank K. Fergusson, 63, commanding officer of the 62nd coast artillery at Fort Totten, Queens, and of the second coast artillery district, died of a heart attack today.

One of the pioneers in the sea-coast defense system, General Fergusson was born in Nashville, Tenn., and entered West Point in 1892.

He served in the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the World War, in which he commanded a brigade of heavy artillery in France.

GREEN SUMMONS LEADERS TO PLAN NEW DRIVE ON CIO

AFL Chief Reports Satisfaction With Gain of 652,000 Members Since August of Last Year; Union To Study Ouster.

BUILDING WORKERS THREATEN STRIKE

NLRB Summons Other Witnesses in Effort To Conclude Probe Into Ford Labor Practices.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—William Green summoned the American Federation of Labor's executive council today to meet August 21 in Atlantic City, N. J., to prepare a fall campaign against John L. Lewis.

Expressing satisfaction with the federation's membership campaign so far, Green said the council would canvass the entire CIO situation and decide how best the AFL could increase its gains and combat Lewis.

Meantime, members of the United Mine Workers' international board assembled for a meeting Tuesday to decide whether to oust Green from the union for alleged "treason."

Accused by Union.
Green has been a member of Lewis union since it was organized in 1890. Last fall, however, the international board accused him of "treason" in helping the AFL fight the CIO.

Green reported the federation's membership had increased rapidly since 10 rebel CIO unions were suspended last September. On July 1, he said, the total was 3,091,000, or 652,000 above the total for August 31 last year. Suspension of the 10 rebels cost the AFL nearly 1,000,000 members. The CIO claims a membership of more than 3,000,000.

Dues and Strategy.
Two of the principal questions to come before the AFL executive council are whether to recommend a permanent increase in dues and whether to extend industrial organization within the federation.

At its Cincinnati meeting last May, the council asked all member unions to double their dues voluntarily to help finance the anti-Lewis campaign this summer.

ATLANTAN KILLED AT TRAIN CROSSING

W. J. Martin, 33, Found Fatally Injured by Man Answering Cry of Help.

Apparently struck by a switch engine near the Elizabeth street railroad crossing, Winifred J. Martin, 33, of 1063 Seaboard avenue, was fatally injured early yesterday morning. He died at Grady hospital about 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Doctors said he suffered a mangled foot, five fractured ribs, a fractured left leg, and scalp lacerations.

Martin was found lying between the tracks about 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning when a passing motorist, James Wood, 22-year-old negro of a Dorothy lane address, who was driving on DeKalb avenue, heard cries of help and investigated.

E. C. Rose, engineer on the Georgia railroad, told police the man evidently was struck about 2 o'clock when a Seaboard engine "cut cars" on a siding.

Surviving are his wife; three sons, Ronald, Donald and Bruce Martin; one daughter, Miss Jeanette Martin; his father, J. H. Martin; five sisters, Mrs. Ethel Jordan, Mrs. D. C. Adams, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. O. J. Camp, Mrs. D. H. Camp and Mrs. John T. McBride, and three brothers, W. C., W. H. and B. B. Martin.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon with the Rev. S. F. Lowe officiating. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery.

Japanese Fliers Strafe Advancing Chinese

Chinese reinforcements, such as are shown above, were being sorely strated by Japanese warplanes as the Nationalist troops rushed northward to Peiping yesterday. Nipponese planes roaring toward the south over the Yellow river, dispatches reported, are harassing advancing trainloads of Chinese troops with a deadly machine-gun fire.

LAST HUNT MADE FOR MISSING FLIER

40 Planes Take Off as Fuel Runs Low on Lexington; Hope Abandoned

HONOLULU, July 18.—(P)—The aircraft carrier Lexington discharged 40 planes into the hopeless search for Amelia Earhart today, probably the final phase of the 16-day hunt for the aviatrix and her navigator who disappeared 16 days ago in equatorial Pacific.

Hope Abandoned.
The fliers concluded there was no possibility Miss Earhart and Navigator Frederick J. Noonan remained afloat in their world-girdling plane. Previous hopes that the plane had reached an island reef were abandoned Friday.

Confident they had not missed anything in the great expanse surveyed, the fliers undertook the presumably closing effort not far from the area searched by the coast guard cutter Itasca at the outset of the hunt.

Fuel Supply Low.
Prior to today's flight, naval authorities here indicated it would close their long search. Fuel on the Lexington was running low and she was expected to head off

Mercy Plane Crew Is Rescued In Plunge 275 Miles Off Coast

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 18.—(P)—Presumably damaged in making a landing at sea to take a sick man from the destroyer Dahlgren, an ambulance plane from the coast guard air base here was reported in danger of sinking approximately 275 miles southeast of Charleston tonight.

Four members of the crew of the plane were taken aboard the Dahlgren and the destroyer is proceeding to Charleston. The sick man, suffering from appendicitis, will be transferred at sea to the naval tug Lexington and removed to the base hospital at the navy yard here.

The coast guard base was advised that the Dahlgren was proceeding at a speed of about 25 miles an hour and would reach the point of transfer about midnight.

Meanwhile the coast guard pa-

NANKING REGIME BALKS AT TRUCE REACHED IN NORTH

Danger Still Persists With 12,000 Japanese Reinforcements on Way To Stay Until Agreement Is Carried Out.

PEIPING GENERAL TO RECALL TROOPS

Ranking Hopeh Officer Apologizes and Promises To Cut Down Anti-Nipponese Sentiment.

TOKYO, July 19.—(Monday)—(P)—The Japanese government announced officially today heavy concentrations of Chinese troops had been made near Peiping constituting a direct act of aggression against Japan.

The movement of troops into crisis-torn Hopeh province, some of more than a week of intermittent fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops, was said by the government to constitute a violation of the two-year-old Ho-meizu agreement.

TIENTSIN, July 18.—(P)—Japanese officials said today the ranking Chinese official in the north had orally accepted the principal demands for a settlement of the far eastern crisis.

Authorities agreed, however, that with reinforcements still arriving for the large Japanese force in this area and with the Chinese government at Nanking announcing refusal to approve any local settlement, danger of conflict still persisted.

General Sung Cheh-yuan, chairman of the Hopeh-Chaah political council and commander of the 29th army which garrisons the Peiping-Tientsin district, called on Lieutenant General Kiyoshi Katsuki, the Japanese commander, at the Japanese Military Club.

Formal Apology.
General Sung was accompanied by General Chang Tze-chung, mayor of Tientsin and commander of the 38th division, a unit of the 29th army. With General Katsuki was Major General Gun Hashimoto, his chief of staff.

The Japanese asserted the Chinese commander offered formal apology for the "Lukouchiao incident," the clash between Japanese troops and part of the Chinese 29th army west of Peiping the night of July 7 which gave rise to the sino-Japanese crisis.

General Sung refused to sign anything, but the Japanese said they accepted his oral assurances his 29th army would evacuate the area west of Peiping where the trouble started. He also promised, according to the Japanese, that he would dismiss several officers below the rank of regimental commander and declared that suppression of anti-Japanese movements and Communism continued to be his settled policy.

Meet Four Demands.
These statements were accepted as meeting Japan's four demands, evacuation, punishment, suppression of anti-Japanese movements and co-operation with Japan in fighting Communism.

The conference entrusted Generals Hashimoto and Chang with arranging for execution of details. (At Peiping, the Chinese 29th route army prepared to retreat southward from Yungting river positions through Changhsien, three miles southwest of Peiping.)

General Katsuki informed the Chinese that Japanese troops would remain in the area between Peiping and the Yungting river until the Chinese had fulfilled all conditions of the agreement.

Also, he said, they would stay

TREASURY READY TO HELP REMEDY WORLD MONEY ILLS

Foreign Countries May Negotiate at Any Time for Financial Aid.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—The Treasury, already linked in monetary agreements with seven nations, stands ready to listen to further proposals for leveling out the ups-and-downs of world currency values.

Disclosing this today, officials added that while no new agreements are pending, foreign countries can open negotiations at any time.

In the last 10 days the Treasury has added China and Brazil to its international partnership for braking fluctuations in currency values.

Sale of Gold.
Agreements with both these countries provide for the sale of gold from this nation's $12,400,000,000 hoard.

After China and Brazil have acquired the metal, it will be left on deposit in this country. The Treasury then may advance dollars against it. These dollars would be used for currency stabilizing operations.

One major barrier to any widespread extension of the Chinese and Brazilian agreements to other countries, officials said, is the $12,000,000,000 of unpaid war debts and the Johnson act.

The Johnson act forbids loans to war debt defaulters. Authorities said the dollar advances against gold under the Chinese and Brazilian agreements would, in reality, be loans.

They asserted that Secretary Morgenthau believes such understandings with defaulting nations would violate the spirit of the Johnson law even if they were technically permissible.

War Debt Defaulters.
Although the tri-power monetary agreement involves some war debt defaulters, officials explained that it does not provide for dollar advances to participating nations.

This accord originally was formulated last September by Great Britain, France and the United States. Later, Belgium, the Netherlands and Switzerland pledged co-operation.

Under the pact, participating nations use stabilization funds to purchase or sell currency in an effort to prevent sharp fluctuations in monetary relationships.

Officials said today this agree-

Minister 'Sits Down' Till Fund Is Raised

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., July 18.—(P)—A one-man sit-down strike by the Rev. J. H. Ellis, pastor of the Haven negro Methodist church, until his congregation contributes $1,000 to refinance the church indebtedness brought a few "peevish" today—and considerable cash.

The minister, who announced there would be no further sermons until the money was forthcoming, said he had received contributions totaling $710 at this morning's exercises.

"I think we will complete the contribution by tomorrow night or at least by the end of the week," he said. "If we don't I will just keep on sitting down."

ment has done much to promote world currency stability. They recalled that there were no upheavals in monetary relationships as a result of the Spanish war or the recent financial crisis in France.

Ordinarily, they asserted, such events would have produced erratic fluctuations in currency values, unsettling trade relationships.

These persons expressed confidence that even greater stability will result from the Chinese and Brazilian understandings.

CONVICTS WILL MOVE TO NEW PRISON TODAY

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 18.—(P)—The first group of prisoners to be moved from the state prison farm in Milledgeville to the new Taitnall county prison at Reidsville will be transferred Monday.

George Fisher, head of the industrial department of state farms, said this group would comprise 30 prisoners.

SHARP DROP SHOWN ON JOBLESS ROLLS

224,692 Private Places Filled in June by U. S. Employment Service.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—Secretary Perkins said today that registered unemployment was the lowest in the history of the United States Employment Service last month and that private placement of workers was the second highest of record.

Announcing that 224,692 private jobs had been filled by the service in June, Miss Perkins said new applications were fewer than in June of last year.

The number of job-seekers actually registered with the service declined to 5,016,014 at the end of the month, a 5.5 decline from May and a 22 per cent reduction compared with the previous June.

ARMY PLANS TEST FOR DEADLY PLANE

Giant Pursuit Ship Carries Six Guns and Crew of Five Airmen.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—The army is ready to send into the air what it terms the most formidable fighting plane in the world—a monoplane for combat in the sub-stratosphere.

The new five-seater fighter, being prepared for test flights at the Bell Aircraft Corporation plant at Buffalo, N. Y., is a radical departure from previous military designs. The air corps will devise new tactics to fit its use up to altitudes of 30,000 feet.

Twin-Motored "Pusher."
The all-metal, armored plane is a twin-motored "pusher" (with propellers behind the wings), carries six machine guns and light bombs, and has new devices to increase its speed and fighting power.

The War Department said the plane had been designed to cope with the "giant bombing planes of the flying fortresses now flying in the leading nations of the world."

After factory tests the plane will be flown to Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, for experimental flights by army men, and then sent to the general headquarters air force at Langley field, Va.

Air corps officials said the plane will be of the pusher type to give increased propeller efficiency. That arrangement also will permit the wing gunners, one in either wing, to have a free field of fire and observation, unobstructed by engine.

The new design also frees the gunners from having to work in the propeller blast, a tremendous handicap on the existing type planes.

Not a Small Plane.
Officials emphasized the new plane is not a small airplane as have been previous pursuit planes. It will have a pilot, co-pilot-navigator, radio operator-gunner, and two outboard wing gunners.

The new plane has heated compartments for the crew, because otherwise the airman would have to work in frigid temperatures at the 30,000-foot ceiling.

Uninformed of the Piccard flight, Madden said he thought little of the sight until about an hour later. A man with flowing gray hair, clad in white, then appeared at his house and said simply, "Good morning."

Final Check of Soap Box Racers To Be Started Here This Morning

Atlanta, East Point, Decatur Contestants Must Be Weighed in by 10 O'Clock Thursday; Others Will Be Handled Before Start of Preliminary Trials.

Final checking of racers entered the Atlanta Soap Box Derby will begin this morning at 10 o'clock at the Derby scene on North Side drive.

As soon as the out-of-town entrants check their racers Thursday the first heat of the preliminaries of the Atlanta race will be run. Preliminaries will continue through Friday and the final heats will be run Saturday afternoon.

Following the crowning of the Atlanta champion Saturday, the winners from Athens, Gainesville, and Griffin will compete with the local winner for the right to represent The Constitution in the All-American Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio, August 15.

home. Two hours later he communicated with Mrs. Piccard from Lansing.

Dr. Piccard choked as he described the accident.

"Had some trouble with my balloons," he laughed, "so I took my pistol and killed about a dozen of them. Then I came down."

Carries Pistol.
He carried the pistol to aid in cutting away the balloons during the descent. He said he did not release the last cluster of balloons until he had virtually reached the ground.

Neither Dr. Piccard nor members of his radio crew were able to explain the failure of the two-way short wave set after only 2-3 hours of successful operation. The radio failure and the isolation of the place where he came down had contributed to fears Dr. Piccard's flight ended in disaster and started a widespread search for him when he was unreported several hours after he was expected to come down.

Mrs. Piccard arrived here in mid-afternoon.

COUPLE DISCOVERED BRUTALLY BEATEN

Elderly Clerk and 53-Year-Old Sister Assaulted in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, July 18.—(P)—An elderly clerk in the city controller's office and his 53-year-old sister were found in their residence today brutally cut and beaten and unable to move. Police said they believed the pair had been assaulted at midnight.

Blood transfusions were ordered for both at Charity hospital. Physicians said their condition was critical.

John Beecham, 35, negro chauffeur, discovered Thomas du Pont, 60, and his sister, Jeannette du Pont, hacked and covered with blood when he reported at the home for work.

He said he found du Pont unconscious, clad in underwear, before a bathroom door.

Miss du Pont was on the bed in her room. Police declared Beecham quoted her as saying, "I was asleep. If you had been here you would have helped me."

MORE CASH CLINKS IN FARMERS' JEANS THAN IN 8 YEARS

Increased Livestock Production in South Is Credited With Aiding Boost.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—More dollars are rolling into the farmers' pockets this year than in any year since 1929.

Department of Agriculture economists delved into statistics today and calculated the 1937 cash income of farmers would be around nine and one-half billion dollars, $1,500,000,000 increase.

This will be almost one and one-half billion more than they got in 1936 and more than twice the cash they received in 1932, when their products brought them $4,377,000,000, the smallest sum in years.

One of the factors in the general increase of cash income has been the increase in 16 southern states of money derived from sale of livestock and livestock products. Income from livestock sales in these states during the first five months of this year were greater by $28,669,000 than the same period of 1936, indicating certain farmers in this area are breaking away from dependence on cotton and corn.

21 Percent Gain. During the first five months of this year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported, total cash income, including government payments, at $3,202,000,000, an increase of 21 per cent over same period last year. For the remainder of the year economists expect this rate of increase will be maintained, and in all probability boosted a little.

Farmers appear to be in a particularly advantageous position, with good demand for practically all their production and prices of some commodities showing upward tendencies.

DR. J. D. CRENSHAW DIES AT AGE OF 74

College Park Dentist Had Lived There More Than 50 Years.

Dr. Jefferson Davis Crenshaw, prominent College Park dentist, died at his residence, 132 East Hawthorne street, College Park, yesterday morning. He was 74 years old.

Born in Athens, Ala., Dr. Crenshaw was one of five brothers, all of whom studied dentistry. He was educated at the Baltimore Dental College.

Moving to College Park more than 50 years ago, he started practice with his brother, the late Dr. Thomas Crenshaw, and lived there until his death. He was also the brother of the late Dr. William Crenshaw, who for many years was dean of the Atlanta Dental College.

He was a Mason, and for many years served as a member of the faculty of the Atlanta Dental College.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Hattie Crenshaw; three nieces, Miss Ella Crenshaw, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, and Mrs. Fred R. White, of New York city, and a nephew, Dr. Thomas Crenshaw.

Services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of A. C. Hemperley & Sons, with the Rev. J. C. Baggett officiating. Burial will be in College Park cemetery.

ROBINSON REQUIEM MUFFLED BY RAIN

Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, in which is written:

"Oh death where is thy sting? Oh grave where is thy victory?"

The quartet sang "It Is Well With My Soul."

"What word of eulogy could I speak that would be sufficient?" the pastor asked, beginning a brief tribute to the late senator. "Few others in the history of our nation's life have lived so tremendously."

Recalling the fame history gave to Webster, Clay and Calhoun, Mr. Watts said that it was too early to put Senator Robinson in a category with them.

"But when a history of the congress, and the crucial issues before it, in the last three decades is scientifically presented by careful students of the period it cannot omit him from rank with the foremost," he added.

"True Democrat."

The pastor characterized Robinson as a lover of country, national idol and "true Democrat in a great republic." The senator was, he said, a man of great force whose greatest attributes were militancy and sincerity.

"He was a fighter," the pastor said, "but no one ever denied his courage or questioned the undoubted sincerity of conviction with which he entered the fight. He denounced wrong and injustice to its face. . . . Perhaps no man in our generation has been more nearly a representative American."

The closing prayer at both the church and graves were delivered by the Rev. James Thomas, elderly Methodist leader and long-time friend of the Robinson family.

Dawes Bow Head.

To the right of the family sat the pallbearers. Among them was former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who sat through most of the service with his head in his hands.

Near him Bernard Baruch listened intently to the service, behind and around them were massed the congressional delegation, all members of which were honorary pallbearers.

In the throng were Governors Bailey of Arkansas, Lech of Louisiana and Marland of Oklahoma.

Vice President Garner, driving in from Uvalde, Texas, averted his eyes when he went to the state house to pay his last respects, turning his head as he passed the bier so that he would not have to look upon the face of his dead friend.

BOLIVIAN ARMY FORCES PRESIDENT TO RESIGN

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 18.—(P)—Lieutenant Colonel German Busch, chief of the army general staff and new president of Bolivia, told assembled officials today the army forced Colonel David Toro to resign as president because of his "negligence."

Colonel Toro declared in Chile that he had been forced to leave the country because of violence used against him.

Andrew D. Helms, Patriarch of Clan, Dies as He Leaves to Head Reunion

As he was leaving his home in Atlanta to attend the annual reunion of his family in Stockbridge, Ga., Andrew Dexter Helms, 63-year-old patriarch of the Helms clan, died suddenly of a heart attack at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Helms, formerly an employee of the Georgia Power Company, had not missed the gathering of his kinsmen for five years, and would have been the oldest member present this year at the reunion of more than 50 of the Helms family.

Born in Rockdale county, he came to Atlanta in 1895 and had lived here since that time. At the time of his death he resided at 1470 Metropolitan avenue, S. E.

Surviving are his wife; one son, Andrew V. Helms; one daughter, Mrs. McMichen; a granddaughter, Miss Fay McMichen; three brothers, C. C. Ben, and Sam Helms, and five sisters, Mrs. Frank Hammond, Mrs. Silas Bowen, Mrs. Florence Lazenby, Mrs. Rebecca Underwood, and Miss Fannie Helms.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the First Christian church, with the Rev. Paul Stauffer and the Rev. T. G. Linkous officiating. Burial will be in Sylvester cemetery, DeKalb county, under the direction of A. S. Turner.

Loyalist Line Staunch After Bitter Fighting

A government trench under the walls of the model prison in the northwest quarter of Madrid is pictured after eight months' of warfare. Near this prison bitter fighting has taken place.

INSURGENTS SEIZE BRITISH TRADE SHIP

of the war was fought over the mountains 15 miles west of Madrid when squadrons of insurgent warplanes, bombing government trenches, encountered a strong force of government planes.

The government said 18 insurgent planes and four defending ships were shot down.

Insurgent ground troops, strongly reinforced by thousands of men rushed to the Brunete salient by Generalissimo Francisco Franco, launched an attack on government trenches after artillery shelled the defenders for two hours.

The insurgent drive brought into action a large number of tanks, leading waves of infantry in an attempt to capture government trenches in the vicinity of Brunete and Villanueva del Arzobispo, about 18 miles west of Madrid.

Hand grenades hurled by the defenders destroyed two tanks, the government said, and drove the others back.

As the infantry and tanks pushed forward, insurgent planes bombed government trenches.

Fleets of government fighting planes rushed into the battle, engaging the insurgent air squadrons. The defenders said the government sent 60 planes into the air against approximately 100 insurgent ships.

The insurgent offensive also was felt in the Valencia area, where fliers in a sudden raid tonight bombed the government's temporary capital.

The insurgents battered at the government forces defending Quesada, Villanueva del Arzobispo, and the University City sector of Madrid.

GEORGIA GIRL IS HELD; POLICE CHECK STORY

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 18.—(P)—A Titian-haired Georgia girl, who, Lieutenant Leo Jenkins, of the state highway patrol, said, admitted and later denied she was the companion of Robert S. Smith, escaped convict charged with the slaying of a Lancaster policeman, remained in custody here today while officers checked her story.

Jenkins said the girl, arrested near Waycross, Ga., last week, gave her name as Mrs. Ruth Ballew Thompson, 18, of Ellijay, Ga., and quoted her as saying she "confessed" to being with Smith at the time the officer was slain at the end of a police chase July 4 "to get my name in the newspapers."

Another woman whose name Jenkins said was Mary Martin, taken into custody at Savannah, Ga., last week, was returned to Savannah today after being brought here for questioning.

GEORGIA GIRL SAVED ADRIFT ON 'SEA RIDE'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 18.—(P)—Martha Parramore, 9, of Valdosta, Ga., went for a sea ride in her "oomiyak" off Jacksonville Beach today.

The small craft with its youthful passenger had drifted a quarter of a mile offshore before a crew of American Red Cross life-savers reached it and towed it ashore.

"Oomiyaks" are small, unsinkable surf craft, fashioned much after the Eskimo kayak.

FIRST LADY'S TAX AGAIN QUESTIONED

Fish Asks Morgenthau If Treasury Has Ruled on Charity Broadcasts.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—Representative Fish, Republican, New York, asked Secretary Morgenthau today if the Treasury had ruled that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt did not have to report for income tax purposes the proceeds of her charity broadcasts.

Fish also inquired, in a letter, if such a ruling had been made public and if the Treasury "still approves of such a ruling."

Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, said recently that the Internal Revenue Bureau had held that Mrs. Roosevelt need not report money received from broadcasts, since it is turned over to a charitable institution. Jackson is a former general counsel of the revenue bureau.

"If such a ruling exists," Fish wrote Morgenthau, "what is there to prevent businessmen from taking one day out of each week's earnings and giving it to charity without having to report it as income?"

Would not the ruling of Mr. Jackson, if applied equally to all donors of charity, permit assignment of income that would defeat the government in the collection of much needed taxes?"

He added that any rulings "made privately with respect to tax returns of members of the administration or their families should be applied equally to the public as a whole."

ESTRANGED HUSBAND IS SOUGHT IN SLAYING

Stabbed, Mazial Tillery, 20, negro, of 830 Mitchell street, S. W., was pronounced dead on arrival at Grady hospital about 9 o'clock last night.

Doctors reported she had been stabbed in the lower neck, both arms and wrists.

Police are looking for her estranged husband, James Tillery, 26, who is alleged to have stabbed his wife during an argument.

Very few details were available, but officers said it was reported Mazial was returning from a funeral when her husband, who had been serving a term on the chain gang, accosted her at Hunter and Jeptha streets and began an argument.

GREEN ATTACKS BROWN AS COMMUNIST STOOGES

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—William Green, president of the AFL, attacked Heywood Brown today as a "stooge for avowed Communists" and called on Brown to resign from the presidency of the American Newspaper Guild.

As a result of Brown's activities, Green said, the guild has been "torn to shreds, with its subordinate officers set out like ducks on a rock for the publishers to shoot at."

Foreigners with long experience in China called erroneous the impression which apparently has gained currency abroad that China at last was ready to challenge Japan and fight a war in Hopen.

The Chinese military machine still is far from ready, in the view of non-Chinese military experts. Many of its parts do not fit together. German guncarriages do not go with Czechoslovakian guns. French cartridges are useless with British rifles. Italian-trained aviators do not understand the American planes they are asked to fly.

CHINA NOT PREPARING TO WAR ON JAPANESE

NANKING, July 18.—(P)—A survey of trustworthy information today indicated the Chinese central government is making no real military dispositions to fight Japan in North China.

What military movements have been carried out, according to experienced foreign observers, have been only to satisfy China's own fire-eaters and at the same time avoid giving Japan an excuse for territorial occupation in the north.

These observers agreed that reports of huge troop movements toward the north emanated largely from Japanese sources and for the purposes of the Japanese army.

Tokyo Propaganda.

The Japanese, it was asserted, were trying to give the world the impression they were acting in self defense in moving their en-

Nurses Toss Rice At Newlyweds At Hospital Here

Nurses threw rice at the newlyweds ran down the corridors of Emory hospital yesterday morning immediately after a courtship that began in a nurses' home was culminated at ceremonies in a hospital room.

The couple were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnson, of Scottdale. She is the former Miss Virginia Boyd, of Fairburn.

They began their courtship in the nurses' home of the Scottish Rite hospital about a year ago when a friend of Clarence took him along one night when he went to see his girl, also a nurse. They married in a hospital because the groom's mother, who has not missed any of her children's weddings, was confined by illness and unable to leave her room at Emory. Best man and maid of honor were the couple who were responsible for their introduction, Lonnie Hardy and Miss Ruth Hooks. Performing the ceremony was the Rev. T. P. Burgess, of Decatur, who has married every member of the Johnson family, except those still single.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Boyd, of Fairburn, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Johnson, of Scottdale. Only the nurses and members of the immediate families attended the hospital ceremonies at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

NEWTON D. BAKER IMPROVES.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 18.—(P)—Mrs. Newton D. Baker said today that her husband was "practically recovered" from an attack of cerebral thrombosis, and that they would leave tomorrow for their home in Cleveland.

THEY SHOULD BE FORSWORN

Recent reports from the Madrid front in the Spanish civil war tell of American youths, members of the "International Brigade," performing prodigies of valor in driving back the Rebel forces of General Franco. It is indicated that a large part of the recent successes of the Loyalist defenders of Madrid is due to this "International Brigade."

The American personnel of this fighting unit is composed of young men who are either imbued with the spirit of the professional soldier of fortune, or filled with easily aroused fanatic enthusiasm for a cause. Whether that cause is worthy or whether they understand that for which they fight is immaterial. Their foolhardy participation in battle is, in any event, the result of youth's volatile aptitude for espousal of what is pictured as a noble crusade.

The day of the soldier for hire, the mercenary, should be over. Citizens of one country should not be permitted to fight in the armies of another. The war in Spain, in this particular instance, should be decided by Spaniards, fighting for their convictions without the aid of foreign legions or other alien troops.

While it could be construed as a violation of individual liberty to tell any American youth filled with the urge to kill either Spanish Loyalists or Spanish Rebels that he cannot, his participation in battle on behalf of a foreign government should be prima facie evidence that he no longer belongs in the roster of American citizenry.

Every nation should require of every volunteer within its armed forces that he forswear the country of his previous allegiance and take the oath of citizenship of the nation to which he has offered his warlike services, or, if fate so decree, his life.

Then it should be made extremely difficult for such an expatriated American to regain that citizenship in this nation which he has renounced for the sake of an alien cause.

RETURNING TO NORMALCY

The report by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Works Progress Administrator for Georgia, that the new fiscal year opens with 5,000 fewer persons on the "labor load," offers incontrovertible evidence of the gradual lessening of the need for public relief and the reviving demand for labor by private industry.

While the reduction in the number of WPA projects possible with the smaller labor supply may result in some communities being denied this type of assistance in their public improvements, the general reaction to the statement will be one of satisfaction.

Re-establishment of commercial and industrial prosperity in the United States will not be fully achieved until private employment can provide for most of the workers now forced to turn either to work relief or direct relief for subsistence. Those unable to work, the unemployed, will always, of course, have to be cared for. But the day is approaching when it will no longer be necessary to extend federal aid to men and women able to earn their own livings if they can secure jobs.

When that day arrives the burden of relief costs will be lifted from business and the shoulders of the taxpayers and at the same time industrial progress and business advancement will be built upon the solid rock of private enterprise and investment confidence, instead of upon the necessarily temporary foundation of government spending.

Another statement of significance in Miss Shepperson's announcement is that there is today a scarcity of skilled labor on the WPA rolls.

Revival of the ordinary channels of employment always makes itself felt first in the ranks of the trained worker. There is, at all times, greater demand for the man skilled in his work, able to command higher rates of pay. So-called "common labor," the wielders of pick and shovel, are the last to be called back again into the ranks of the employed.

The shortage of skilled workers in the WPA rolls is a happy sign and augurs, once again, a speedy reabsorption of all workers in the army of the normally employed.

It is to be hoped that the Soviet's air base at the North Pole doesn't develop into one of those budgetary items called frozen assets.

It is reported that the next mechanical improvement will be an automobile without a steering wheel. Seems as though they have been seen, already, on some city streets.

A scientist has announced that the nerves of some insects quiver when they hear music. That's nothing. Ours ache when we hear some of the recent radio programs.

THE NEWSPAPER AND ITS COMMUNITY

The modern newspaper has been widely recognized as an outstanding example of a semi-public service utility for its community, of wide business and social significance. This appreciation of the service performed by a free, untrammelled and competently directed newspaper is constantly spreading among business and professional men and citizens generally.

The Henry W. Grady School of Journalism of the University of Georgia at Athens is contributing through a new service to this understanding of the functions of the press in town, city and rural life.

Members of the faculty of the school are available, it is announced by Director John E. Drewry, for talks on the various branches of newspaper service and newspaper activity before luncheon clubs or other groups. Such talks are of distinct value to any community in drawing closer together in co-operative effort for community good the newspaper publisher and the local leaders in business, industry and other human interests.

The Grady School of Journalism has performed many valuable services to Georgia and the south. From its classes have come many splendid newspaper personalities and it has served as a center for dissemination of the best of the new ideas in publishing.

The Georgia community that takes advantage of this opportunity to hear vital discussion of the possibilities for community benefit in the columns of the community newspaper, will undoubtedly find it has made a practical step toward that advancement in business and social success which every progressive unit in today's social order desires.

MUST BE A "PROPER GANDER"

It would be the apogee of effrontery to suggest that the story of an alleged "monster" lurking in the depths of the White river south of Newport, Ark., was conceived and brought forth in the publicity cells of a Chamber of Commerce brain.

But, just for the benefit of amateur deduction experts, emulators of the late regretted Sherlock Holmes, it may be permissible to set forth certain published angles of the story. Whatever conclusion may be reached as a finished edifice from these separate bricks of suspicion is a matter for the conscience of each builder to determine.

In the first place, the mysterious "monster" was merely an indefinite rumor. A sort of whispered creature in violation of all the laws of White river nature.

Secondly, the "discovery" was at once taken over by the Newport Chamber of Commerce, with promises of an attempt at capture, accompanied by a radio broadcast of the proceedings.

Thirdly, one W. E. Penix, collector of bridge tolls, took up a collection to buy rope with which to manufacture a great net for the entrapment of the "monster."

Now, the finances have run out before the net is complete. And Penix says he can't finish the job, unless someone buys more materials.

The Chamber of Commerce has discovered the cost of the proposed radio broadcast is prohibitive. So they're dropping the venture.

Without publicity, why bother about the "monster"? Let it continue to lurk in the eddies of the White river. Who cares? Could it be possible that, without publicity to focus attention on Newport, there is no "monster"?

Maybe the whole idea is monstrous. However, an ex-naval diver will dip into the river in an effort to get to the bottom of it all.

GRAND ERA FOR BOYHOOD

Huckleberry Finn may have found his fun in ways which would appear outmoded to modern youth, but the boyhood of Atlanta in 1937 enjoys thrills never dreamed by Mark Twain.

On July 24 the annual Soap Box Derby will be run in Atlanta. Boys jockeying the miniature motorless cars they made themselves will flash down North Side drive inclines in a race for the honors of victory and for the opportunity to compete in the national Soap Box finals.

There will be valuable prizes and the rivalry between the scores of entrants will be as keen as witnessed in any race since Ben Hur drove the Arab steeds around the ancient hippodrome.

The boys who drive their homemade racing cars will need hearts full of courage, steady nerves and the qualities of good sportsmanship. Such assets, though, are common to the boyhood of Atlanta today.

The little cars they ride will bear witness to their skill as designers and their mechanical ability. They will be of all shapes and colors, but one thing they will all have in common—they will speed at surprising rates and they will every one carry a cargo of youthful hope.

There can, of course, be only one winner. But there will be many prizes and not an entrant will go away completely empty-handed. In addition, they will have enjoyed loads of fun in building their racing steeds and in flashing over the downhill course to the finish line—winner, prize-taker or also-ran.

There is, after all, a blessing to offset almost every tragedy. The passing of the strawberry season marks the beginning of watermelon time.

The ex-Kaiser's yacht goes into service in Boston as a banana carrier—the biggest let-down since Selassie showed up at the races in a derby hat.

CURING THE RECKLESS

(From the Greenville Piedmont.)

Even the Nazis sometimes have good ideas. In Germany anyone convicted of reckless driving has to pay the regular penalty and this, too: a mechanical governor, bearing a police seal to prevent tampering, is placed on his car as a guarantee that he will not thereafter drive at a speed of more than 30 miles an hour.

That practical plan might bear fruit in the form of safer driving conditions if adopted in other lands.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

TAX "LOOPHOLES" WASHINGTON, July 18.—The income tax collectors aren't the only members of the Treasury Department who are worried about "loopholes." The men who have to garner social security taxes are finding that there are old dogs who have learned new tricks in this field, too. It isn't admitted officially and no figures are available, but here is one dog that is being used.

A man who always thought he had been a salesman, was treated as such, suddenly awoke one morning and discovered that he was a dealer. A dealer, of course, wouldn't be in the employee category and therefore his company would not have to pay taxes on him under the old age pension and unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act.

But it isn't evasion that's worrying the social security tax collectors so much as delinquency. At least, so they say. Right now collections are $58,000,000 short of estimates made a year ago and covering what it washed up would roll into the treasury in the first six months after the law became effective.

The Internal Revenue Bureau isn't getting ready to sharpen its knives for these delinquents. It knows human nature and it thinks it knows why the people have been slow to pay.

First, these are brand-new taxes to a lot of people who never paid a federal tax before. They are just putting off doing anything about them until they get a little loiter.

Second, corporations delayed remitting until the supreme court belatedly decided that they had to be upholding the social security law. Large bodies move slowly. Whole new accounting systems have to be devised, new departments organized.

General Motors alone, it is reported, is spending $5,000,000 annually to meet the requirements of the law, quite aside from the tax itself.

COLD SHOULDER INDICATED As Washington awaits the first volley in the new court bill fight, it is beginning to hear rumblings from the business world over the efforts of the Johnstown citizens' committee to build a national organization on the back-to-work movement.

While it was expected that this attempt, backed by one of the large professional money-raising firms of New York, would awaken the shouts of Fascism on the left, the slowness of leading businessmen will come as a rather cold douche to the Johnstowners.

Only, of course, there won't be any official statement on the subject.

However, the composite view reaching Washington of representative groups, including the smaller businessmen and the industrialists as well as the "in-betweens," can be stated as approximately this:

1. The Johnstown committee did a good job for "law and order" and for the "right-to-work" when it lined up solidly against the CIO in the "little steel" strike in its own backyard in Pennsylvania.

2. To attempt to build a national organization, pledged to such a program, would simply be an "extremist movement" which would help the cause of the "extremists" on the labor side.

3. A plan which worked in Johnstown might not necessarily work elsewhere and could therefore do harm rather than good if applied generally.

THE ONE "ERROR" One authority whose word carries plenty of weight in the business world vouchsafed as his personal opinion that the attempt to nationalize the Johnstown committee was the one "error" in the whole campaign against the CIO organizers.

ON THE OTHER HAND Quite a different view is reflected by members of the senate civil liberties committee, and one that might be more cheering to the Johnstowners.

Some of these men who have been battling for the civil liberties of the workers look with no little apprehension at what they term "the vigilantes movement." They see it as a highly effective weapon in capital-labor warfare.

Investigators for the committee point out that in the "little steel" strike no strikebreakers were involved, that the militia when called was cheered by the strikers and yet the strike was broken by the well-organized "back-to-work" plan.

They likewise insist that it was not a spontaneous campaign based on public opinion but a carefully prepared, directed and systematic program based on the use of economic pressure.

As an example, they direct attention to the report that one of the largest dry goods stores in Johnstown discharged a large number of employees at the beginning of the strike and warned the rest that if the strike continued they might have to go, too. They have no machinery for proving such charges at present.

COMMITTEE'S FUNDS GONE

Just as the committee members were ready to boast for labor espionage and strikebreaking, this new method appeared on the scene. They are privately admitting that so far they can find no plan of attack upon it—couldn't at present carry one on anyhow since the committee's funds have been exhausted.

What Did Shakespeare Say?

Wasn't it in Hamlet that one of Shakespeare's characters says something like this:

"There are more things in heaven and on earth, dear Horatio, than are dreamt of in man's philosophy."

Hamlet, or Horatio or Shakespeare himself would certainly, in their day, have classed modern radio with one of those things unaccounted in man's philosophy.

How much greater would have been the bard's astonishment could he have heard the broadcast performance of his tragic play about the Danish prince, which radio gave last Monday night. Compressed within one hour's time, too, to the detriment of the production.

Tonight, if you are interested, it is worthy of note that the second of a weekly series of such productions is to be given. The play tonight is "The Taming of the Shrew," I believe.

Really a Creditable Performance.

The "Hamlet" of last Monday night was, in all, a creditable performance. Burgess Meredith succeeded in bringing the character of Hamlet into the very tones of his voice and others in the cast were, at the very least, adequate.

The chief criticism, if criticism must be made, has to do with the scenes involving rapid clash of characters and, consequently, considerable sound. There were moments when the conflict of voices resulted in unintelligibility. Perhaps it was my radio or my aging ears, however.

An hour's entertainment very much worth while, however, with little to cavil about. The story was well told and the atmosphere of the Shakespearean lines thoroughly retained. The beauty of the words was all there and the thrill of the plot was never lost.

The forthcoming presentation of the series may continue the good work of instilling a new appreciation of the art of Shakespeare in those elements of the rising generation apt to scorn his works because of their own superficiality.

General Johnson

Commentator Says Congress Should Recede to Evade Bitter Party Fight.

By HUGH S. JOHNSON.

Congress Ought To Recede

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If July 18.—If ever a conclusion was clear, it is that this congress ought to recede now until October 1. Recede! Pass such stop-gap appropriations as are necessary to carry on the normal work of government and get the hell out of here.

Why? Because the filthy fight within the Democratic party is getting nastier hourly. It became a ghoul and undignified squabble over the bier of Joe Robinson. It is breaking sincere friendships of many years standing—some of these ties make the basic pattern which holds the Democratic party together.

Now that party is the party of liberalism. Like any party it has two wings—radical and conservative. The right extreme may be hard to distinguish from the Republican party, but the weight of influence is to the left of that extreme. Break those two wings apart and the Republican party instantly becomes dominant, and it is the party of reaction.

The danger of that is right on top of us. That danger will almost certainly descend from the present situation in Washington whether the President wins or loses the immediate court fight—if he insists on letting the terrible tactics of the last few days go on to a conclusion. In other words, the only way to save the President's victorious legions is to send them away from here until the sudden midsummer madness is over.

Cyclone That is not written as a Democrat. Plenty of Impends people who don't care what happens to that party, care very greatly what happens to the objectives of Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal and they know that, if he doesn't move with speed to side-track this cyclone, he is going to split his forces wide apart—and let in the forces.

Those supporters of Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal objective who believe this threat is immediate and real, also believe that the only way to avoid it is to recede this congress—NOW. Many of them have been so faithful to Mr. Roosevelt at such sacrifice that they at least have a right to be heard.

Opponents of this idea compare this congress with the congress of 1933. They say these old congresses did well enough through longer, hotter summers without air-cooling, and that this hallelujah of killing men, tempers, reasons and principles with the heat of a Washington July and August is baloney.

The difference is that in the war and 1933, men were working together and in mutual confidence. In 1937 they are tearing each other apart.

Court Fight Why not recede? The farm, wages and hours reorganization bills are all in confusion and they can't be gotten in shape in this atmosphere. Nothing can be put in order until the court fight is out of the way.

Will the President's case on the court be any worse, if a complete truce is called? Not if he has the country with him. In the latter circumstances he will be far better off to take a breathing spell. If he is "wrong" and the country is not with him, he may be defeated. But it would be much better to take that kind of beating after cool deliberation and with time to prevent his defeat from ruining his party, than to win this victory but lose the objectives of his whole administration, and perhaps take a lower place in history than his brilliant record thus far gives him.

That tempers are hot, judgments hasty, feet too far off the ground is evident everywhere here, and at no place more clearly than at the White House.

During his entire packed and brilliant career, whoever before saw Mr. Roosevelt lose his easy grace in riding buck-jumping legislation? His weapons were coolness and persuasion. They usually won. A club and a snarl are new tools to him. This year's record doesn't show that he knows how to use them.

Our Neighbor Alone Is Guilty

If He Shoots Us Merely For Throwing Rocks at Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Self-preservation is not a simple business of preserving life. It includes preservation from all things that would make life unpleasant, including remorse and a guilty conscience.

Thus we instinctively make excuses when we have done wrong, and absolve ourselves of all responsibility for the evil consequences. If a small boy builds a bonfire that races through a field of dead weeds, ignites oil tanks and destroys a freight depot containing a fortune in merchandise, he will say with honest conviction: "Aw, I didn't do it. I just built a little bonfire and the wind did the rest of it. It wasn't my fault."

The aborigines of Australia, still unaware of the law of cause and effect, could make a similar defense in all sincerity; but the civilized man, who knows the law, can plead innocence only by deliberately fooling himself.

And since we cannot preserve ourselves from the unpleasantness of remorse without fooling ourselves, we make a practice of ignoring the law of cause and effect and refusing to see any connection between our acts and their unfortunate results. It is always fate or luck or natural law that causes the trouble.

Knowing that we can find an alibi when needed makes us careless. If we were mentally honest enough and courageous enough to accept responsibility, our minds would instinctively look ahead to foresee evil results and thus preserve us from the misery of regret. The one who peers anxiously into the fog is the one responsible for the ship.

Given the habit of mental honesty and logical foresight, one might not say, "Let's get a quart and pep up a little as we ride, but rather, 'Let's get drunk and wreck the car and cripple ourselves for life.'"

And the dictator planning war might not bellow soul-stirring phrases but declare in solemn honesty: "I am sending you out to steal some iron mines. I shall require one million of you to die in agony, half as many to sacrifice arms and legs, and an equal number to be blinded. Those who remain at home must lose all their savings, suffer years of hardship and finish their days in impoverished misery."

The only thing that makes war endurable or possible is the childish dishonesty of blaming the enemy for all the horror we bring upon ourselves when we begin it.

WORLD S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

One Year of War in Spain.

LONDON—It was a year ago on July 16 that five Italian bombing planes came down to earth in French Morocco and that their occupants declared to have lost their way while about to join the Spanish Foreign Legion. A few days later General Franco, governor of the Canary Islands, raised the banner of revolt against the Spanish republic. All the military garrisons in Spain rose. In Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia, Cartagena and Alicante, the revolt was suppressed. General Sanjurjo, who was to have led the uprising, was killed in an airplane accident while flying from Portugal to take command.

Within 48 hours the authorities in Madrid realized that the generals of the army had been systematically preparing the rebellion and that they had carefully removed all the war stocks from the capital, even the medical supplies, to Burgos and Salamanca, on the pretext of holding extensive maneuvers. Madrid was without an army to defend itself. The government of Professor Giral was willing to surrender, when the labor unions demanded to be armed to assure the defense of the legally constituted regime. The citizenry was armed with whatever equipment could be found, hunting rifles, revolvers, parabolisms, old flintlocks from museums and so on. These hastily-assembled battalions of the people's militia, while unable to take the offensive, because of lack of artillery, nevertheless held the principal cities except Sevilla, Cadiz and the above-named towns of Burgos and Salamanca, and have held them ever since.

Reinforcements. General Franco transferred the Moroccan army from Africa to the mainland, obtained 150,000 men reinforcements from the Italian and German armies, 500 cannon from Portugal and 600 airplanes from the fortune of Juan March, the Madrilese banker. The government from its side obtained airplanes from Russia, rifles from Mexico and about 12,000 volunteers from the anti-Fascist emigre circles in Paris and southern France. By international agreement, no war material was to be delivered to the Spanish government or to the Rebels, an arrangement which would have finished the war within two months in favor of the government, if the agreement had been kept.

However, it soon became clear that Germany and Italy were vitally interested in a victory for General Franco. Documents found in the vaults of the Bank of Spain revealed that prior to July, 1936, the great munition trusts of Germany, Rhein-Metal, Krupp, Opel Werke and the Chemical Dye Trust, had obtained concessions for the exploitation of Spain's extensive mineral deposits, which were needed for the gigantic armament campaign now in full swing.

Fascism Versus Communism The world came to see in the struggle between the two contending forces a battle between

SUBSTITUTE COURT BILL IS NOT COMPROMISE

Editor Constitution: May I, a life-long Democrat and a strong supporter of the President, and a convinced advocate of the New Deal, speak to your readers on the issue now before the senate.

The so-called compromise proposed as an amendment to the bill (S. 1392) "to reorganize the judicial branch of the government," by Senator Logan for himself and Senators Hatch and Ashurst and introduced by Senator Robinson July 5 as a substitute is no compromise.

As to the supreme court—the President is authorized to appoint an additional justice this year, another January 1, 1938, and one other each calendar year for each justice, including the chief justice, who shall have reached the age of 75. As the chief justice and Justices McReynolds, Brandeis and Sutherland are each 75, the court may thus be increased to 11 by January, 1938, and to 12 by January 1, 1939, unless death or retirement of some of these older justices should occur.

All that has been said in opposition to the original proposal applies equally to the substitute and more. The original was mandatory; the substitute is permissive. The President is now given power to appoint an additional justice or not, at his discretion, for each justice who at the time of nomination has reached the age of 75. Thus congress has delegated to the executive the power to increase the size of the supreme court at will for any reason that may seem good to him, subject only to the limitations that he may not nominate more than one additional justice in one calendar year.

2. Provision for the assignment of justices is adequately and more wisely covered by existing law (Title 28 U. S. C. A. Sec. 17). The substitute, like the original bill gives the chief justice power to assign any district judge in the United States to any district without check. The present law limits the power according to the need. In case of disability of a judge or accumulation of urgency of business, the senior circuit judge may assign any district judge in his circuit to a particular court; and if this is not practicable, the chief justice may designate a judge from an adjoining circuit, or from any circuit, provided the senior circuit judge of the circuit from which the district judge is to be taken consents. These are wise and proper safeguards.

3. The proctor. No such official is needed. All the duties assigned to him by the bill are vested by statute (U. S. Code, Title 28, Sec. 218) in the chief justice, the attorney general and the conference of senior circuit judges, which is required to meet in September each year, after making reports of the business of each circuit, the number and character of cases pending and disposed of and the arrears together with their recommendations.

If, however, a proctor is authorized, he should be made executive secretary of the conference, and not be given leave to roam over the country duplicating the work of the judges and the attorney general.

4. The provisions of the bill with regard to intervention of the government in cases where the constitutionality of a statute is involved should be taken up separately. They have no place in a bill dealing with the constitutionality of the supreme court.

The Logan bill is a mere face-saving device. No such operation is needed. The President does not need it. Nor do the senators, nor does the Democratic party, nor does the New Deal. The best way to remedy a blunder is to admit it.

CHARLES C. BURLINGHAM, Past President, American Bar Association and former president of the New York Board of Education, New York, N. Y., July 15.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE

Editor Constitution: I have been a reader of The Constitution for a number of years. I notice in The Pulse of the Public, in your paper a number of expressions both for and against Mr. Roosevelt's proposed change in the supreme court of the United States.

Personally, I am against this proposed change.

Why change the system of government that has existed for 150 years, and has grown to be one of the greatest systems of government the world has ever known?

America is not Russia, nor is America a communist.

Extremes begot extremes, and laws which favor one group of people at the expense of other citizens, or to satisfy the wishes or ambition of any man are inherently unjust and unstable.

Unfair legislation brings the whole structure of law into contempt. These are changing times, but the American people cherish justice and freedom.

Our ancestors fought long centuries and sacrificed to establish a government of law of the people and for the people, and not a rule of classes or of men.

In my humble opinion, it is better to let well enough alone.

W. L. DENTON, Dallas, Ga., July 16, 1937.

MINISTER IDENTIFIES HAMMER IN SLAYING

PITTSFIELD, Ill., July 18.—(AP)—A blood-stained hammer was identified today by the Rev. C. L. Newton as the weapon with which he bludgeoned Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, nearly a week ago before tossing her body into the Mississippi river.

SUSPECT MAY FACE MANN ACT CHARGES

Held in Burglary Probe, Youth Attracts Attention of FBI Agents.

Possibility that federal agents will seek to pin charges of violation of the Mann act on Paul Smith, 20, of 110 Main street, one of four youthful larceny and burglary suspects arrested in Gainesville Saturday, was revealed yesterday by Atlanta Detective E. D. Meek.

Smith and Miss Marie Carden, 15, of Mableton, another of the suspects arrested, have both admitted going together to Jacksonville, Fla., for two weeks and having been to South Carolina together, the detective said.

Both the girl and boy, and their two companions, Tom Baker, of Jacksonville, and Chester Prestage, of Mableton, yesterday repudiated confessions allegedly made in Gainesville in which they were reported to have admitted a burglary.

They did, however, admit holding a store "either in Georgia or South Carolina, we don't remember," Meek said.

Indictments will be drawn today charging all four with larceny of an automobile, the detective said.

Ralph Gover, Macon taxi driver, who was forced by two men to drive them to Atlanta from the middle Georgia city last Saturday night, has been notified to come to Atlanta and view the suspects. Two of them are thought by detectives to be the ride, rough men.

CIO RAILWAY LOCAL VOTES DOWN STRIKE

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—(AP)—The Building Service Employees' Union, an AFL affiliate, threatened tonight to call a strike within 24 hours in all buildings whose operators decline to sign a labor contract with the organization.

"We can immediately halt the upkeep and service operations in more than half of the buildings in Pittsburgh with the strike of elevator operators, bell boys, chamber maids, janitors, housemen and watchmen," asserted Charles C. Levey, international representative of the union.

Levey said his organization has more than 12,000 members and predicted hundreds of more would join with calling of a strike.

Meanwhile, delegates to a special session of the CIO-sponsored railway equipment local union voted today against striking at this time at the Westinghouse Air Brake Company's plant in suburban Wilmerding.

The union had claimed a majority of the 6,000 workers at the plant were members and demanded it be certified by the Regional Labor Board as the collective bargaining agency for all.

Travel of the private cars and trucks touched similar peaks during the day, hitting the maximum between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The maximum for commercial trucks was 11 o'clock at night, when private travel had subsided considerably, he said.

BOARD TO END CASE AGAINST FORD SOON

DETROIT, July 18.—(AP)—Anxious to conclude its hearings, the National Labor Relations Board summoned additional witnesses to appear tomorrow at the resumption of its hearing into charges of unfair labor practices against the Ford Motor Company.

Trial Examiner John T. Lindsay and board attorneys indicated today they expect to complete the case against the company by the middle of the week, thus giving defense counsel an opportunity to be heard.

Ford attorneys, who have objected constantly to testimony already introduced, have intimated they may not call any witnesses. In answering the NLRB charges the company contended the board lacked jurisdiction.

Hallelujahs Meet Pastor on Return From Jail Term

ZION, Ill., July 18.—(AP)—The Rev. Finis Jennings Dake, amid a chorus of hallelujahs, returned to his flock today from a five-month sojourn in the Milwaukee, Wis., house of correction.

The saxophone trio of his Christian assembly church played, "His Grace Is Greater Than Our Sins," and the hand bells, 32-year-old pastor chose the occasion to sound a solemn warning against "human weaknesses" and to urge his listeners to "forget the past."

"Amen," the congregation echoed.

The Rev. Mr. Dake made no direct reference to his imprisonment, which was brought about when he pleaded guilty to violation of the Mann act. He was sentenced to the story of a 16-year-old Kenosha girl, who was his companion on trips to Bloomington and East St. Louis, Ill.

SOUTHERNERS ON TOUR VISITING MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—(AP)—A delegation of 228 high school and college students from North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida arrived today for a nine-day tour of Mexico City, conducted by Clarence Y. Rose, of Atlanta.

The group, a majority of which are girls, are traveling in a fleet of 10 buses and three automobiles. They encamped last night near Pachuca, Hidalgo, 60 miles north of the capital, and will camp here on the outskirts of the city.

After leaving Mexico City, the party will visit California and the Grand Canyon, returning to Atlanta the last of August.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"What doesn't go there is sure to come here—so let it go there."

Texas cotton may be export cotton, but when there are no exports it becomes domestic cotton, and there's the rub for the cotton farmers who are being persuaded not to worry about the export market. Commenting on the noteworthy address of Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, before the farm chemurgic council at Little Rock last week, Editor Francis Clark, of The Atlanta Constitution, agrees with him that the American high tariff policy is closing the world's markets to the south's cotton and reminds us that even though "the great bulk of export cotton is raised in Texas and it is Texas which will first feel the effect of the passing of the export markets," the result will be a huge surplus on the domestic market with a resultant drop in prices which may prove disastrous to the cotton growers of this (southeastern) section."

Texas cotton thrown back on the market is likely to command that market, too. On the level plains and great plantations there they can produce it at lower cost than we can this side of the Mississippi.

For 100 years economists have debated the actuality of so-called technological unemployment without ever yet coming to a conclusion, says Assistant Administrator Corrington Gill, of the Works Progress Administration. But aren't they about to conclude this much at any rate—that machinery does not necessarily put men out of work. (1) The cost benefits of the labor-saving are passed on to the public in the form of lower prices and higher wages and (2) if the necessarily social and non-profit nature of some of the new work new machinery creates is recognized, the great example is the automobile, it has made far more work than it destroyed because competition has brought its price miraculously low and because the building of highways to accommodate it has been undertaken by county, state and federal governments.

Senator Bankhead advises this column that in his opinion the agreement reached by the house and senate conferees on the farm tenancy bills "preserved the spirit of the senate bill in the matter of the retention of supervision and also the avoidance of transfer of the title by the new owner in the early stages of farm ownership. In fact, he seems to think that the compromise agreement may work even better in this direction than the original senate bill to which the President's special committee was so properly committed.

"The conference report," he says, "provides that the new owner cannot within the first five years transfer the farm and will not be allowed to do so even by paying the entire purchase price in full. That agreement prevents transferring the land by the tenant under even the most tempting circumstances. The report further provides that the instruments under which the loan is made may be in such form and contain such covenants as the secretary of agriculture shall prescribe to protect the security and to assure that the farm will be maintained in repair, and waste and exhaustion of the farm prevented and that such proper farming practices as the secretary shall prescribe will be carried out. This stipulation gives full supervision to the secretary and is not limited to the first five years of the purchase but continues as long as there are unpaid installments."

"I think we got a good adjustment. . . I am inclined to think that the extension of the right to supervise farm practices during the entire period of amortizing the loan is better than the leasing and probationary period of five years contained in the senate bill."

Public Service Commission Maps Co-operation With Highway Patrol

Recent Survey of Vehicles in Use Indicates, Members Say, That Chief Problem of Reducing Accidents Centers in Correct Driving of Private Automobiles.

Plans for co-operating with the new State Highway Patrol, in enforcing safety rules for vehicles using Georgia roads have been made by the Georgia Public Service Commission.

After a recent survey of vehicles in use, the commission said the chief problem of reducing accidents centers in correct driving of private automobiles and trucks, and not in the commercial vehicles over which it has control.

Commissioner Perry T. Knight, head of the survey for the board, and Commissioner Matt L. McWhorter said they would recommend to the Public Safety Department, which controls the highway patrol, the adoption of safety rules for private vehicles similar to those for commercial trucks and buses.

Survey Figures Cited.

Knight cited figures from a 24-hour survey on the Atlanta-Cartersville highway to show the comparison between private and commercial travel.

During the period, 2,342 private cars and 493 private trucks passed the checkers, while there were 43 buses and 234 commercial trucks.

Travel of the private cars and trucks touched similar peaks during the day, hitting the maximum between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The maximum for commercial trucks was 11 o'clock at night, when private travel had subsided considerably, he said.

Accident Eradication.

He and McWhorter declared the problem of accident eradication depended primarily upon safeguards for the period when private cars and trucks were moving in the heaviest volume.

"We are determined," they said, "to do all we can to make commercial trucks and buses safe both for riders and for other users of the highway."

"Our survey indicates clearly, the catch is not sold," Dowling said.

Boat License Law.

A boat license law put a fee of $1.05 on all boats of 16 feet or less engaged in salt water fishing, whether commercial or sport fishing, and whether used solely by the owner or by others.

Boats longer than 16 feet must pay 20 cents for each additional foot.

An additional license tax of $25 is required from non-resident or aliens who own boats used for fishing in Florida salt waters.

FLORIDA OFFICIAL EXPLAINS FISH LAW

License Fee Required Only for Non-Residents Who Sell Their Catch.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 18.—(AP)—R. L. Dowling, state conservation commissioner, said today criticism of salt water fishing laws passed by the 1937 legislature "resulted from misunderstanding of the laws."

There is no license fee required for out-of-state persons to fish in Florida salt waters if they do not sell the fish they catch, he said.

Some persons in Georgia and Alabama misconstrued some sections of a law passed by the recent legislature," Dowling said, and a report spread that they would be required to pay license fees ranging from $5 to $50 if they made fishing trips in Florida.

Resident Wholesalers.

One law provides that a resident wholesale fish dealer must pay a license of $50, and a resident retail fish dealer must pay $5. Non-resident wholesalers must pay $500 and non-resident retail dealers must pay $50.

Non-residents who "engage in taking salt water fish in this state, other than for personal use, shall be required to pay an annual license tax of $5," the law provides.

Dowling said confusion about the law may have resulted from this section, but he pointed out it is applicable only in the event a person sells the fish he catches.

"No citizen, alien or non-resident, is required to pay a license for catching fish for pleasure or for his or her own use, providing

FBI CAPTURES LAST OF O'MALLEY GANG

No Resistance Offered by Notorious Bank Robber Seized in Los Angeles.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(UP)—Harry Blee, 31, last of the notorious O'Malley bank robber gang which terrorized the midwest, has been captured in Los Angeles, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today.

Blee was taken without resistance in an apartment where he had been hiding out. He was unarmed but FBI agents found a pistol in the apartment.

Other members of the gang either are in custody or dead. Blee is charged specifically with robbery of the First National Bank of Neosho, Mo., and will be returned to Kansas City for trial.

The bank was robbed on March 2, 1935. Blee and other members of the gang waylaid the negro janitor while he was on the way to work, forced him to open the bank, then seized and bound bank officials and employees as they arrived.

When time locks opened the vault doors the robbers scooped up $16,685.70 in cash and $2,183.82 in bonds and fled. Walter O'Malley, leader of the mob, was captured May 27, 1935, in Kansas City. He later pleaded guilty to the kidnapping of August Luer, at Alton, Ill., and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Dee Carroll, who lives with Edna Carver, pretty, Baltimore matron, and Edna's widowed mother, is engaged to Brad Dunning, young insurance agent. Dee is secretary to Charles Larimore. Going to a dance at David Nolan's home with Dee and Edna, Edna meets Neil Dane, whom David is welcoming back after three years in South America. At once Edna knows Neil is her ideal. He tells her his father was captain of a freighter and, except for one year at a summer camp when David saved him from drowning, he spent his vacations with his father seeing many parts of the world. Since graduating as an engineer, he has indulged his wanderlust. Thelma King is jealous of David dances often with Edna. Neil takes Edna home, wants to kiss her but says, "Good night, Edna. I wish I had never met you." He sends orchids next day and takes her to dinner. He can never marry, he says, because of his wanderlust. The avowed New York business trip, his sister Joanna, Larimore dies suddenly. Neil tells Edna he's loved her from the first and asks her to marry him when he returns from David's home. Thelma shoots herself. David has just told her he is going to ask Edna to marry him. To shield David, Neil says they must say they love themselves because of him. "NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY."

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

Her eyes wide and dark, Edna stared at him. "What," she asked in a breathless voice, "are you saying, Neil? Do you mean . . . ?" "I meant what I said. You heard me." How long would this last? He asked. Edna, my dearest, these are lies! I did it for Dave and for you because I'm the wrong man for you! I haven't a job! I've no right to your beautiful love for me!

Slowly she was believing him. She drew back. "Do you mean you never loved me?"

"Oh, I wouldn't say that." "Oh, tell me! Don't try to make it easy for me! I've got to know! You mean," she said slowly, "that the night on the golf course meant no more to you than other nights in your life when you kissed a girl—that you never meant to marry me—that you cared more for Thelma all the time?"

"That's right," he replied curtly. "They looked at each other. Edna's eyes were still dark and wide, Neil's expressionless."

"And I loved you," Edna said. "I held out my heart to you, my life. I told you I'd follow you to the end of the earth. I wasn't playing! I meant it to the very depths of me. Did you think it was a casual thing with me?"

"I got to thinking about it and realized you had taken it too seriously. That was after I wrote that letter. I don't know why I wrote it. That was why I came to explain . . ."

"You've explained it very clearly. What a poor innocent little fool you must have thought me! That night I was just another date to you, but I was an exciting date, wasn't I? I believed you! I was planning to marry you! A bitter mirthless laugh escaped her. "It is a joke, isn't it? But I'm the joke. I've heard of men like you but I never knew one. Dee told me you were the wrong kind of man for me. You're the wrong kind of man for any girl!"

"Shall I take you home?" he asked. He thought, "After I'm gone, Dave will come around." Edna opened the car door and a rush of wind cooled her burning face.

"No. You may not take me home. I can't bear to stay in this car with you another minute. A cab will be passing . . ."

Without a word, he drove away. In the car mirror he saw her standing on the pebbled road, her hair blowing. She had forgotten her hat. An absurd little hat, it was, that she wore pulled over her right eye. He looked at it and bit into his lip. Taking his handkerchief, he mopped his damp forehead.

It was over. He knew what he was doing. He was going back to Dave's and pack his things and get the first train to New York and then the first ship to South America. He had friends there and perhaps he'd get a job, any kind of job, to keep his hands and his mind busy. And perhaps some lonely night he would write to Joanna and tell her that he had and would never love her but if she wanted to take a chance with him. . . . And he would take Edna's boyish little hat with him and quite often he would take it and hold it and remember a snowy night when she had given her heart to him. . . . "She doesn't realize it yet," he thought, "but I gave her back to the smooth and beautiful life that David can give her."

Edna hailed a cab and gave the driver her home address. Then she said, "No, just drive around the park, please," knowing she was going to cry. The driver looked at her through the mirror while she sobbed into her handkerchief.

The twilight colors had dissolved into darkness. Headlights from passing cars flashed into her eyes. After a long time she stopped crying and said, "Take me home now, please," and wondered how she was going to face her mother and Vicky. Then she missed her hat. "He will throw it out of the car," she thought, "because he doesn't want anything to remember me by."

Vicky opened the door. In the pale hall light she did not see that Edna had been crying. "You're late, Edna! Cousin Martha went to a movie and she left your dinner on the stove. I'll fix it for you."

"I don't care for any dinner tonight, Vicky."

Vicky followed her into the bedroom. Edna went to the window and rested her hands on the sill, her back to her cousin. Then she turned, seeing Vicky looking at her with troubled, questioning eyes.

"Edna, what's the matter? You look . . ."

Brokenly Edna said, "We had a secret, didn't we? Now it's got to go on being a secret. There—there isn't going to be any wedding! I just left Neil. I left him after he told me I didn't mean any more to him than any other girl he'd kissed and made love to. The tears fell from her lashes. "And I waited for him and I believed him. He's a convincing liar! I—I feel as if somebody had walked on me—as if I'd been trampled and crushed by a crowd. My heart is sick, Vicky. Sick!" She looked at the younger girl.

"You look as if you don't believe it either. I didn't until—until he made it so brutally plain."

"Do you still love him?" "Love him? I despise him! I don't want anybody to know about this, Vicky. I never want mother to know. It will have to go on being the secret between us. I don't know how long I rode around the park. It must have been hours. It took all the money I had to pay the cab fare. I—I was so certain about him! I even knew what I wanted to wear when I was married and how I wanted the church to look." She stopped suddenly and smiled a little. "Will you study in the living room tonight, Vicky? Is Dee home?"

She went to the movies with Cousin Martha. She didn't find a job today. Brad called—me. We're going dancing again this Saturday night." Collecting her books and papers, she asked, "Is there anything I can do, Edna?"

"Thanks, no. There is nothing anybody can do."

Later when Vicky came into the room, Edna was sitting in the chair by the window in the darkness.

Low, Edna said, "You asked me if I still love Vicky. I do and I shall all my life. He made love a joke and broke my heart in little pieces but I love him still. That's the way girls are. But I've just been thinking that the worst part of this is that I'll never marry the man I love. I've seen girls marry men they didn't love and I've hated them for it. Now if I ever marry, I won't love my husband either. That's probably the cruellest thing of all."

Mrs. Carver placed Edna's orange juice before her and looked at her with troubled expression. "Aren't you feeling well, dear? You've been so quiet for the past few days."

Edna smiled. "Oh, I'm all right. I'm fine, really."

And across the table Vicky looked at her with pitying eyes.

Mrs. Carver went back to the stove, wondering if Edna's pensiveness could be attributed to David's recent neglect. Though she had no social ambitions for her, she had thought it fortunate that a young man both good and wealthy had obviously been interested in Edna. She wished that Edna would confide in her.

Everything was the same in the world, Edna thought, walking to the street car in the biting wind with Vicky beside her, her books clutched tightly in her arm. It was odd that the world could be the same and you saw the same faces on the street car corner each morning and heard the same inane talk at the shop while your own world had been turned upside down and you were left hurt and broken. Sleepless, she had seen every dawn, her mind would not rest. There were no more tears to shed. Again and again she thought, "All I have from my love is a heart that's sick and lonely, and promises that were made to be broken, and one night, one perfect night, which I wish he told me was a hideous lie."

Determination to hate Neil had failed. If only she could put him out of her thoughts and call her broken love an experience that had taught her a lesson and, after a while, laugh about having loved Neil Dane, the adventurer, briefly. But you could drag a woman through heartbreak and disillusion, she thought, and invariably her love remained aloof and unaltered. So it was with Neil. And the cruellest thing of all, as she had told Vicky, was that if ever she married, she would not love her husband because the man she loved had gone out of her life. She had turned her face away from the blue velvet frock displayed in a shop window. Desperately she had tried not to remember her happy plans. But the dreams and plans of happiness with Neil, the clear mental picture of them together, remained. If only there were something else to fill her thoughts. If only night and day, any time and any place, the memory of him that night on the golf course, his words, his kisses, the happiness in his voice would not come between her and everything she tried to do. Edna thought, "Neil, you filled my life. When you left, you left me nothing. One day blends with another and there's nothing! Nothing!"

Vicky looked at her furtively. Edna smiled. "You think I'm awfully quiet, don't you?" "Yes. But I've got to find something else to think about. Looking ahead, she saw the same familiar faces on the windy corner. "If he had loved me and there had been some good reason for his not being able to marry me, I shouldn't feel this way. I told him I'd wait forever, and I would have waited. But he never loved me at all. I must have sounded very young and foolish to him that night, pouring out my heart to him."

Vicky said, "He fooled me, too. I thought he was wonderful and he looked so much in love with you, Edna! He was the happiest looking man I've ever seen that night."

"He'd made a conquest. I suppose it flatters a man's vanity to know a girl can't marry him. Let's—let's not talk about it any more, please, Vicky."

GRAY SQUIRRELS AT HOME.

In mild weather, gray squirrels build nests in trees. These usually are located in the crotch of a trunk, or where a large limb divides into parts.

Ernest Thompson Seton tells of seeing a tame squirrel which had been kept as a pet for eight years by a farmer's family near Toronto. He states that the squirrel "was as young-looking and active as ever it was." That is an example of something which does not happen very often. People I have known who have tried to keep squirrels as pets always have had trouble with them. In one case the story ended when the squirrel tried to escape and was killed by a dog.

In their natural homes, squirrels seem to have a good time. They scamper about, and pounce with joy on acorns or nuts they discover. Hickory nuts are the favorite food of gray squirrels. The habit of burying them for use during the winter has proved helpful to people. The nuts often are forgotten, and are likely to take root and grow. It is believed that gray squirrels planted a large proportion of present-day hickory trees. Gray squirrels also eat berries, leaves, grain and roots. They store nuts in their nests, as well as burying them in the ground. A squirrel called "Oswald" used to run about the Lincoln park zoo, visiting a golf course. Oswald gathered "nuts" of a strange kind—golf balls! A keeper looked into his winter nest, and there he found 32 golf balls.

SENATE PLANS VOTE ON ROOSEVELT VETO OF FARM LOAN BILL

Byrd To Oppose Quick Action on Government Reorganization Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—The senate may vote early this week on President Roosevelt's veto to low farm interest rates and also decide what to do with the government reorganization bill.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, served notice he would try to get action on the veto next Tuesday. He proposed that the senate join the house in overriding it before resuming the court bill fight.

Senator Byrd, Democrat, prepared to lead opposition to quick action on the administration's plan to reorganize the executive branch of government. An advocate of greater economy than the present bill entails, he said he would demand full public hearings, adding that it would take several months "to explore the subject adequately."

Death Weakens Chance.
The death of Majority Leader Robinson, some legislators said, weakened chances of the bill passing at this session. He was almost the only member of the senate reorganization committee, they said, to take an active part in pushing the revised version of the measure which he introduced shortly before his death.

Borah said the senate should be able to vote on the veto between noon and 2 p. m. on Tuesday, when debate on court reorganization automatically begins.

The house voted last week, 260 to 98, to continue for two years the 3 1-2 and 4 per cent interest rates on approximately $3,000,000,000 of farm loans despite the President's contention that the "subsidy" would cost the Treasury about $40,000,000 and interfere with his efforts to balance the budget.

Wagner Housing Bill.
The senate labor committee will hold executive session Tuesday on the revised Wagner housing bill but it is not expected to report until later because of a controversy over a mandatory slum clearance amendment by Senator

Down-Trodden Men Gain Real Champion

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—The Public Health Service would like to see all men discard collars and ties during the hot season.

By doing so, doctors declare, the men would give perspiration a chance to evaporate, thereby improving their tempers and perhaps avoiding prostration.

"Hot weather is a physiological sock on the jaw," one surgeon declared, "but if you give the body a chance to do its normal work of sweating and evaporating it from the skin you will keep cool."

Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts.

On Wednesday, the senate Democrats are slated to hold a caucus to choose a successor to the late Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson.

The house agriculture committee has arranged to begin closed sessions Tuesday on the new general farm program expected to embrace some version of the "ever-normal granary" idea and production control. Hearings on the seven "little TVAs" will be resumed by the rivers and harbors committee.

Consideration of a $25,000,000 flood control authorization for lower Ohio valley cities to supplement previous recommendations of army engineers is due to come up in the house on Monday.

QUAKE JARS FRISCO.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—(P)—A 20-second earthquake awakened many San Franciscans early today but no damage was reported.

In his pockets was a hotel key. Investigation revealed the room had been taken by "J. E. Edmondson, of Baton Rouge." The name meant nothing to the victim, whose shirt was stamped with the initials "H. V. E."

Attendants do all they can to make him comfortable as he lies there more or less listlessly, eating only when forced to do so. His only thoughts seem to be to find out who he is and to get rid of the headaches.

LOWER TEMPERATURES PREDICTED FOR TODAY

Slightly cooler temperatures and thundershowers this afternoon are on the weather menu for Atlanta today, the Candler field weather bureau said yesterday.

The mercury should range between 68 and 80 degrees today, they predicted. The low yesterday was 72 and the high, 90.

Thundershowers may be expected more or less generally throughout the southeast, the weather bureau said.

The heat wave had a mild relapse in the southeast.

Showers over a wide area lowered temperatures from the mid-nineties they have frequented for the past several days.

Through middle and south Georgia the mercury hovered around the 90 mark on unofficial thermometers. Jefferson had 91, Macon 88, Thomasville 88, Savannah 92, Brunswick 92.

Showers tumbled Columbus mercury three degrees to 94, while a later shower drove the mercury below 70 degrees. At Augusta there were a few clouds, fewer breezes and a downtown thermometer read 97 at the afternoon peak.

Mrs. LiveOak, whose father-in-law founded the Live Oak Gardens subdivision in College Park, died Saturday afternoon at her residence at 208 Elmo street, Live Oak Gardens.

She was taken to Marietta hospital, where doctors said she died of a heart attack.

WILLIAMS PRESIDENT SAYS HE HAS QUIT

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 18.—(P)—Taking cognizance of reports he was about to resign under alumni pressure, President Tyler Dennett of Williams College, announced tonight he presented his resignation a month ago.

Trustees of the college accepted it, he said, at a meeting in New York July 9, and had planned to make it public when a successor was appointed.

Disagreement with the trustees over financial policies of Williams, brought to a head by their action in purchasing a large hotel property near the campus over his protests, led to the rift and his decision to resign, Dr. Dennett declared.

'Night Key' at Capitol Stars Boris Karloff

Mommer, here's that man again—But, this time the screen terror, Boris Karloff, is playing his first dramatic role, that of a master inventor engaged in a hunt for burglars.

He'll continue his search for a week in "Night Key," which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater.

Karloff invents a super-burglar alarm system only to have the million-dollar invention stolen by his partner. In a rage, he invents an alarm neutralizer and enters store after store to prove the ineffectiveness of the alarm system as sold by his former partner.

A gang chief sees the usefulness of the neutralizer and makes Karloff an unwilling partner of his gang.

In the cast with Karloff are Jean Rogers, Warren Hull, Alan Baxter and many others.

Another big variety program is offered on the stage in the "Monte Carlo Revue." Headline acts are performed by Johnnie Rio and Terry, a musical variety offering; Happy, Tom and Jerry in thrills and speed; Don Malden, hand balancing; Corvino and Yovita, dancers; Larke and Paige, dancing sisters; Wallay Wallahan, youthful baritone.

News and comedy complete the program. L. R.

24-Hour Stretch Around Atlanta Ends for Man, 84

After wandering around Atlanta for 24 hours, R. C. White, 82, of Lulu, Ga., was back in his temporary Atlanta home yesterday, thanks to a police radio broadcast and a Forest Park resident.

Mr. and Mrs. White arrived in Atlanta Saturday to visit Mrs. Louise Gorman, of 48 Thirteenth street, police reported. They had driven from Mobile, Ala., and White, feeling a little cramped, said he was going for a short walk.

That was all they heard of him that day.

The family, becoming frantic, appealed to police and a description of the man was broadcast. From this, he was finally located.

In the meantime, Roy Pair, of Forest Park, saw a man sleeping on the side of the highway near his home about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night. He stopped his car and asked what was the matter.

"Nothing's the matter," the man replied as he turned over, and went back to sleep, Pair reported to officers.

Later in the night, the man tried to enter Pair's home, which was near by, using a key. Pair came to the door and the man asked, "What are you doing in my house?" Pair invited him in and gave him a bed for the night, he told police.

Yesterday they heard a radio broadcast for the man and Pair called police, who notified Mrs. Gorman. Patrolman J. H. Smith and Mrs. Gorman went for White and took him home.

NAZI HOUSE PAINTER INSTRUCTS ARTISTS

Beware Recent Jewish Degeneracy in Form, Says Der Fuehrer.

MUNICH, July 18.—(P)—Opening the new "house of German art," Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today announced his Nazi regime would eradicate ruthlessly the last vestiges of the former "degenerate" era in Germany's artistic life.

The chief characteristics of that era, he said, were lack of clearness, confusion, distortion and corruption. Jewish art criticism, co-operating with Jewish art dealers, had been the chief influence in the old era, the Nazi leader declared.

Hitler said clarity was the keynote of the German artistic spirit. Hitler ridiculed cubism, futurism, dadaism and similar trends. He advised any German artist who thinks he has something to say to "express it clearly in his work" and not in silly explanatory phrases. He declared art which cannot be understood without a new vocabulary of phrases and slogans is worthless.

It is possible, the reichsfuehrer went on, that some artists actually see the world as they paint it but that, he said, is no excuse for calling it art. Such tendencies rather should be a matter for investigation as to "how such pathological defects in eyesight can originate," he said.

Hitler is a former house painter.

Slight Incidents in the Life of a Great City

By LOUISE TODD WALLACE.

LONDON—On June 28, I went to Wimbledon.

Queen Mary entered the Royal Box in the Center Court just before our own "Billsie" Grant and "Bunny" Austin came into the court. The two players turned together and bowed as they entered.

The English are true sportsmen, a good play made by either side is applauded. It isn't so much the player as the play that they see.

They are fair here.

Only last week a man who shot his wife's lover was sentenced to five years' penal servitude. The judge said: "I have in my heart the deepest sorrow for you, but it would not do to allow it to be thought in this country and in this century that people, however much provoked, may be allowed to take the law into their own hands and arrogate to themselves the right of punishment which belongs to the state. Indeed, the object of the law partially is to teach self-control and resistance to influences of provocation."

And again—

At the funeral of a costermonger, the cortege halted at the point where he stood with his fruit barrow for over 44 years.

So even if I haven't been a "pamphleteer" I'd like to do a bit of decorating on my own and I'd pin no medal on Mussolini but do honor here in England, where there is honor and sentiment.

Yesterday I went to Richmond—a charming old town on the bank of the river on the slope of the hill. A more entrancing view of the Thames valley cannot be had than from here. It is no wonder that Richmond was a favorite residential town in those bygone days before the automobile clipped off 20 miles in as many minutes.

In those aforesaid, coaching parties drove out from London for dinners and garden teas in the old Star and Garter hotel.

Queen Victoria spent part of her honeymoon here. Also, nearby is White Lodge, the royal residence where in 1894 was born Edward, Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor. The place teems with history, beauty and romance.

But, it is tea time! So off to the "Maid of Honour" we will go and have sweet cheese and cakes called "Maid of Honour."

This tea shop takes its name (it is said) from the time, when on this spot, Henry VIII first saw Anne Boleyn. She and her maids of honor were eating delicious cakes, and the King, attracted by her beauty, made so bold as to inquire what the cakes were. Alas! alas, for Anne Boleyn and her cakes!

Later on, here, too, in Richmond, Henry VIII stood on a mound watching for the rocket from Tower hill that would announce the execution of his Queen—Anne Boleyn.

Toll, bells, toll! The death of Sir James Barrie, who lived in his flat in the Adelphi, has cast a gloom over all London. Tragedy seemed to follow this modest man of genius, as it sometimes does the most kindly mortals.

The old Adelphi has gone, "making room for progress," or, if you will, destroying the dreamer's habitation. I suppose in its place is being erected something "modern," electrically equipped throughout, no little crooked chimney pots will adorn the roof, no bow windows, no steps leading to the "front door" where a lantern hangs overhead, no iron railing, no iron rod on which to scrape the mud from one's boots, no brass-plated, no sight from outside of a glowing fire to give welcome, but thank heaven, Adam, John, Robert and the rest of these romantic streets are too narrow to allow a bus coming sweeping along followed by motor cars.

Some two years ago I had tea with a friend who lived in John street and it was with a sort of reverence that I passed along doorsteps and archway in this enchanting part of old London. Change has been at work since then. Adelphi is a district off the Strand, the other end faces the Embankment. It has "up-and-down-hill" streets with steps ever so often, is laid out in what was originally the grounds of Durham House, the birthplace of Lady Jane Grey.

"Emma," before she was the bewitching Lady Hamilton, once worked in a beauty shop in this quarter. Garrick died in Adelphi. Dickens describes his youthful experiences here in David Copperfield. And until about 70 years ago the arches offered a city refuge to desperate characters. Thomas Hardy lived for a time in Adelphi and it was until very recently the homes of the Savage Club. This, in a small part only, tells of its glories.

Again woe and lamentations! Lord James, of Guernsey, has disappeared. His two mothers are disconsolate. His fate is absolutely in darkness and all Palmer street is searching. On the wall in the Guernsey Tea Shop hang three

A Beach Cabana Kit for Summer Care and Protection of the Hair

By LILLIAN MAE.

It has been said by a Hollywood coiffure stylist that girls do more to injure their hair during the summer than at any other time. He does not deny that a certain amount of sun is beneficial to the hair and the scalp, but he also believes that too much of the direct rays dry out the natural oils and cause the tresses to become streaked and brittle.

The firm of sisters, to whom I have often referred, again comes to the front with that ounce of protection which is better than many pounds of cure, for summer hair. They have just launched a smart, compact, practical new beach cabana kit, which fills a crying need.

Fashioned of simulated alligator in handsome dark green, the folding case closes tightly with a button clasp. It contains a tonic cleanser, easy to use, and grand to rid the hair and scalp of salt water, dust, sand, perspiration, etc.—those hugabugs which have to be fought and fought hard while on a vacation at the beach. Then there is a scientific oil, which, sprayed over the hair lightly before exposure to the sun, screens out the burning rays, at the same time admitting the health-giving properties. Incidentally, this pre-colored portraits of Lord James done by admiring patrons, perfect in every detail, the "purr" is all that is missing.

Lord James was popularly known as "Jimmy." Some six years ago he was rescued from a life of abandonment by two ladies from the Channel island of Guernsey who discovered this tiny wide-eyed ball of fur by the bridge in St. James' park. He was adorable, he responded to their caresses, he could not be left alone in the chill of night air, so home he was taken to the tea shop and called "Jimmy" for the park where he was found. A year passed. Day by day Jimmy became more magnificent in demeanor as well as appearance, and of his "findings" the title of Lord James of Guernsey was conferred upon him.

He battled with his arch-enemy, "Plushy" (a block neighbor), did this intruder dare cross the road to sit in the sunshine that came so freely upon the tea shop and I am told by the florist in the next shop that Lord James' favorite diet was flowers, newly cut.

It is my earnest hope that one of these days soon Jimmy will turn up enriched by an adventurous experience, then my letter can end with—

Ring, bells, ring!

Your Figure, Sir!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

STOCKY MAN'S WEIGHT PROVIDES PROBLEM.

"That's not fat, that's muscle," says the average fat man in defense of his weight. "At my age I'm entitled to weigh close to 185 pounds. Besides, my father was a big man. I'm stockily built."

Those are the favorite alibis of the stocky man who is headed toward avoidupois, and these are something in his argument. It is difficult for the heavy-set man to keep his weight at normal. Structure makes the difference in food requirements between two men of the same weight. The short, stocky man gains steadily on more food than keeps the tall, thin man at normal weight. The difference in food requirements is to be attributed to the smaller surface area of the stocky man. Also, he may have less active muscle tissue.

As explained by Dr. H. C. Sherman, eminent authority in nutrition research, the thin man—in addition to having greater surface area in proportion to weight—also carries a higher percentage of his weight in active tissue. The utilization of calories, called "body metabolism," depends more upon the percentage of active tissue than upon total weight. This active tissue burns many more calories than fat.

Then how about the short man who is also thin? Because of his thinness he has greater surface area and more active tissue in proportion to his weight than the fat man of the same height but different build. Therefore, he can eat considerably more food without crowding his waistline.

The next item in the very handy kit is a creme wave set which gives body to limp, unmanageable hair, softens dry, brittle ends, forming them into attractive ringlets. This is splendid for bleached or dyed hair.

Last but not least, the cabana kit contains a gay bandana—in either scarlet or blue—which is a great protection when tied loosely over the hair while lolling on the beach, motoring, boating or picnicking.

Now that I've bragged so much about the kit, you'll undoubtedly think it is very expensive. On the other hand, you'll be overwhelmed when you hear how reasonably it may be bought.

And these sisters haven't forgotten the men. They have a similar kit for them—firmly believing that too much unwise summer exposure is the beginning of many a bald pate.

If you will phone me at my office in The Constitution building I will be glad to tell you the name of this kit and the stores at which it may be bought. In case you live outside Atlanta write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The short, stocky man has more difficulty than any other type in keeping his weight at normal. It seems that everything he eats makes weight, and almost invariably this person enjoys eating and has a high appreciation of good food.

If you are in this class, you do not need to "diet." In fact, that is the wrong thing for you to do, for you cannot spend your life on a diet. You should, rather, change your food habits and learn to like the foods which will allow you to retain normal weight. More than anyone else, you will profit from the scientific substitution of foods which will assure you of being well-fed, but not too well nourished.

Fats and Desserts.

This does not mean that you need to eat meals with a fork in one hand and a calorie chart in the other. There are just two food items you have to watch: fats and desserts. Fats include gravy, sauces, the fat rim of the meat, fried foods, cream and butter. You can have one pat of butter with each meal and a measured amount of cream in your coffee. You do not need the other fats. As for desserts, make it a rule never to take dessert other than fruit.

When your food requirements are low, your food habits must be governed accordingly.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, Friday—I stepped off the train this morning to find it fairly warm in Washington. After breakfast alone on the porch I had a little talk with my husband and, to my great joy, found letters from Mrs. James Roosevelt and John, mailed at Gibraltar. The trip seems to be very happy so far and they are finding the Italian boat delightfully comfortable. Mama is, as always, most enthusiastic and John tells me with glee that the captain gave a party for her and she was the life of it.

The work of changing the roads south of the White House seems to be going on very rapidly. As yet, I can't quite picture to myself what it is going to look like, but the landscape people all seem to think it will be a great improvement. The President, who has the capacity for visualizing things which are on paper, I am sure, has a perfect picture of what we are going to see from the south portico in the future.

It is sad to come back to Washington on such an errand as Senator Robinson's memorial service, when I read of the years that Senator Robinson spent in the senate, that his colleagues of every party grieve over his loss.

There was a statement in yesterday's newspaper, however, which gave me rather a curious feeling. The gentleman seemed to feel that he was so receptive to information from the Almighty that he knew the reason for whatever might happen on this little planet of ours. What a satisfaction that must be when most of us grope so much of the time to explain the various horrors which recur in the world, and finally decide that the Almighty leaves us with a good deal of personal responsibility.

The ceremony in the senate chamber was very impressive and the two hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me," were sung by a woman with a very sweet voice. I hope they brought some comfort to the family, who must be suffering from the suddenness of the shock as well as from the grief which comes to anyone at such a time.

After the service I joined the President and went in for a minute to talk to Mrs. Robinson. I have always thought her a very remarkable person. Her calmness and thought for others at a time like this added greatly to the esteem in which I have always held her. She was surrounded by her family and friends, but at such times as these there is a curious feeling that we walk alone. People may want to help us and their love may give us courage, but in the end through all the great moments of life we walk alone. Today, many people were sympathizing with her and if thoughts can buoy up one's courage I am sure that she will receive that kind of help at last.

UNEXPECTED.

green and a chartreuse green. Draperies were light chartreuse green satin made to hang straight from a gold molding cornice but the draperies themselves were finished across the bottom with a wide petticoat ruffle that swept the floor. Glass curtains of emerald-brocaded dotted net were also made to sweep to the floor. The furniture coverings were interesting. The heavy pieces, sofa and two chairs, were in a slightly lighter green than the walls but still a rather deep dulled tone. Two upholstered chairs were in chartreuse satin and two side chairs had seats and backs in an unusual shade of shell pink striped material which was repeated in a pair of extra pillows for the sofa. This note of shell pink appeared again in lamp shades and in fresh flowers used in the room. Altogether, his was a stunning accent of color with those dull greens.

What a room for a red-headed woman!

"What a room for a red-headed woman," exclaimed an acquaintance we met at the home of a mutual friend (red headed) who just had her living room done over in a most dramatic and unexpected style.

Her courage with the walls was the most exciting and effective thing about the room. They were dark bronze-green—almost black in appearance but so becoming to that flaming hair of hers. With them she had fine reproductions of old paintings in deep gold frames. The floor covering was a sprawling patterned seamed carpet, edged all around with dark green fringe instead of being tacked to the baseboards. The carpet colorings were pale beige, deep

Just how daring dare a lady be with her redecorations anyway? That's the question that comes to mind when we look at a room like that. It's easier and safer just to do the same old thing with walls and rugs and furniture coverings. But not very stimulating. We usually advise a little more courage with color, because color, after all, is the cheapest ingredient in your decorations. What if an unusual wall color isn't the thing you'll want to live with the rest of your life? After all, it will be a refreshing change for a few years, then you'll get around to having it done over again anyway. The same is true of furniture coverings and curtains. Take a chance on something different because they won't last forever anyway. But be more cautious about furniture and rugs—there you get into lifetime purchases and so you'll want to get things that you feel sure you'll always enjoy, be guided in your selections more by the personality of yourself and family as well as by the uses to which each room will be put, rather than by the drama that can go into your color selections.

Leonard Tames Smokies in Final, 9-3, Before Crowd of 9,554

Those Pelicans Shouldn't Play the First Half of a Season

This morning at the hour of eleven, an hour made famous some years ago in a council chamber at Versailles, our baseball nine will begin a road trip which will endure until August 2.

The situation has changed somewhat. A week ago our nine was engaged in a fight for the pennant. It is now engaged in a fight to remain in the first division.

The situation is not exactly a comforting one. Birmingham and Nashville take turns breathing on our red necks.

New Orleans has started a spurt, the usual mid-season spurt which annually carries the Pelicans up there into the pennant fight. It is an old Larry Gilbert custom.

And now the Pelicans are just one and a half games behind us, saying, "Polly wants a Cracker."

There is no denying the fact our nine is in one of those slumps. Slumps are caused by a number of things, baseball having its own list of germs which cause slumps, loss of hustle and other baseball diseases.

Meanwhile, there yet is time. If the club can entrench itself in third place and then keep banging away at the Memphis lead in second place, there is time to get up there.

The Travelers, for the first time, are pulling away in first place. They are panting after that pennant and are showing a world of excited hustle with Doc Prothro, the tooth doctor, hiving them on.

The Crackers, by emerging immediately from their slump, can stay in the running. But some of the heat around our town is caused by the proximity of those Vols and the Barons. And that hot spurt the Pelicans are showing.

Meanwhile, we have just observed a few illustrations of why baseball retains the affections of the fans. A couple of hopeless, somewhat down-at-the-heel ball clubs like the Lookouts and Smokies, come to town and manage to beat a ball club which is up there and with a chance. All of which makes it a great game.

THAT DOUGLASVILLE BARBECUE.

One reason why the Crackers may be in something of a slump is the fact the good people of Douglasville are a bit late with that barbecue.

The Douglasville barbecue, which has a special secret sauce, has been a July feature. It gave the Crackers that added zing which sent them on their way with added power and pick-up.

This year the barbecue will not be held until August 2. It is a private barbecue for just the Crackers and their hosts at Douglasville. It may not be too late. If the cooks at Douglasville will start now on that sauce they may yet save the situation.

MAULDIN'S SWAN DIVE.

Professional divers attending Cracker baseball games, go away biting their nails and green with envy.

Marshall Mauldin's swan dive as he steals second is one of the greatest acts the Crackers offer in their repertoire. Sunday he twice stole second with that swan dive and the crowd shrieked with delight.

It really is a combination of a jack knife and the swan dives. He scoops up enough dirt to fill a good-sized flower box and the crowd enjoys that, too. They chuckle very heartily indeed as he shakes out the dirt.

AS TO DISAPPOINTMENT.

There was one little moment yesterday when some high hopes came crashing down for at least one player in the game.

Gordon Maltzberger recently was sent away by the Atlanta ball club, Knoxville taking him. He had been going well with Knoxville and yesterday he had his big chance—a good crowd and chance to show them just how wrong the Crackers had been in letting him go.

For a time it appeared he might prove it. The Crackers gave Leonard very slack support in the opening innings and were not hitting Maltzberger. But they kept trying and in the eighth Maltzberger was taken out of there. He went off very slowly and apparently very grateful for the round of applause. Atlanta fans are generous.

JIMMY JONES VISITS.

Jimmy Jones, for four years a popular and valued member of The Constitution staff, and before that a fixture at Macon, was a visitor in our town yesterday.

Jones is sports editor of the Richmond Times Dispatch where he is doing a fine job and where he has made himself the same popular man he was in Macon and Atlanta.

He will visit his mother and sisters in Columbus for a time this week before returning home to complete his vacation.

LAWSON MEETS FERONA TONIGHT

Buck Lawson, who Friday night meets Gus Kallio, middleweight wrestling champion, in a title bout at the West End arena, tonight will tackle Joe Ferona, Italian star, in a preparatory match at the Key arena.

Lawson defeated Kallio in two straight falls some weeks ago in Mississippi, but it was a non-title bout. And he thinks his match tonight with Ferona will put him on the proper edge for his Friday match with Kallio.

Mike Cassidy and Jack Bloomfield are matched in the semi-windup of the Key card, while Young London, Atlanta boy, will meet Baron Von Hoffman, the gruff German, in another main match.

The opener at 8:30 brings together Frank Remille, Birmingham butcher, and Bill Jeffries, the Arkansas Traveler.

Lawson has made great forward strides since coming here. He won the light-heavyweight crown from Tarzan Jordan four months ago.

CLARKDALE LOSES.

BUDGE AND MAKO MEET GERMANS IN CRUCIAL TEST

Doubles Match Against Von Cramm, Henkel Today May Land Cup.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 18. (AP)—The United States and Germany, playing presumably to see who will beat Great Britain for the Davis cup, send their doubles teams out on Wimbledon's famed center court tomorrow to break the 1-1 tie in the interzone finals.

Baron Gottfried Von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel, the same Germans who held the American even in singles Saturday, play against America's Wimbledon champions, Don Budge and Gene Mako.

The way it looks now, this match will determine the location of the cup for the next year. On recent form Budge is favored to beat Von Cramm and Henkel given the edge over Bryan Grant in the final singles matches, scheduled Tuesday. Playing in reverse order yesterday, the red-tinted leader of the American team completely outclassed Henkel, winning 6-2, 6-1, 6-3, but Von Cramm had it all over Grant by as wide a margin in his 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 victory.

SHOULD TAKE BRITISH. On this basis the experts figure the team that manages to walk off the court with the lead tomorrow will still hold it Tuesday and take the British team, lacking the great Fred Perry, in the challenge round the following week-end.

Tradition favors the United States. Two weeks ago the Americans beat the same German pair in the semi-finals of the all England championships after one of the greatest fights ever seen on Wimbledon's historic courts. The Germans got away then to a two-set lead but bogged down at the end when Henkel tired and couldn't keep his first whistling service in bounds. But the scores of the match were so close—4-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3—that nobody is willing to bet the Californians can do it again.

GERMANS BALANCED. Man for man it generally is conceded the Germans are a better balanced pair. Budge is clearly the superior player of the four but Mako is considered the weakest. The question seems to be whether Gene will be able to handle Von Cramm's deceptive, high-kicking second serve and Henkel's hard, fast one.

It is unlikely Henkel will repeat his maddening foot faults that cost him so many points the last time he faced the Americans.

London is treating the interzone finals with vast disinterest even though the English concede Budge and Von Cramm are the best amateurs in the world. They're waiting for the challenge round next week-end, when Britain will rely upon Austin, Austin and Austin to retain the cup.

The German pair relaxed today when there was no play while the Americans went sight-seeing.

There Is Still Magic in Big Dutch's Right Arm

Emil (Dutch) Leonard hasn't the fast ball that made him the sensation of the Southern league last summer and early this spring, but he still has plenty on the ball and his arm is getting stronger daily. Yesterday he won his third game since returning to the lineup, mastering Knoxville, 9-3, for his seventh win of the season. Only one Smokie run was earned. Leonard's form gives the Crackers hope as they hit the road for 16 games. Despite his long layoff, Leonard expects to win 15 games this year.

ATLANTA TEAM FIRST IN SHOOT

Buddy Jones Wins High Professional Honors in Southeastern Meet.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 18. (AP)—Marksmen from Georgia carried away most of the honors today in the closing events of the Southeastern States championship skeet shoot here.

Jack Boardman, 14, of Augusta, Ga., came away with laurels for the highest total score among amateurs during the two-day shoot, breaking 239 targets out of a possible 250.

Boardman also won the 100-target Southeastern Individual Crow after being forced to shoot an extra round with H. L. Thompson, of Savannah, to decide a tie.

In the extra 50 targets, Boardman broke 48 out of 50 while Thompson broke 46. Both broke 97 out of the first 100.

Teams from Atlanta placed first and third in the five-member group contest, the first team scoring 456 out of 500, and the second 439.

Savannah's team, with 447, was second in the event.

Miami shooters captured the man and woman team events with scores of 178 and 174 of a possible 200.

Poncey Attendance Now 192,260--5,351 Behind

Cracker Admissions to Date Total at Least Half of Other Seven Cities Combined, Belief.

By JACK TROY. While six or seven-eighths of the Southern league clubs are very close-mouthed about attendance, the situation in Atlanta is one at which to point with pride, if one must point.

And one must, in this case, because, rude though it may be, the figures speak for themselves.

It is not possible to know just how many customers the other seven clubs have attracted, but it is almost a safe bet that the Crackers total to date is easily half of the combined attendance of all the rest.

ALLISON BEATS ERNEST SUTTER

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 18.—Wilmer L. Allison, the tumbling Texan, successfully climaxed another comeback try today by defeating Ernest Sutter, 22-year-old national intercollegiate singles champion, of New Orleans, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2, in the final round of the Bathing and Tennis Club invitation tournament.

The 33-year-old veteran, national singles champion in 1935, survived a shaky start in which he dropped the first set to sweep through the next three and gain a leg on the Clifford Hemphill challenge bowl, won the past four years by Frankie Parker.

Parker, member of the Davis cup squad, retired the original Hemphill trophy, and won the first leg on the new bowl last season.

Allison showed no effects of the injuries which forced him to default in the semi-finals of doubles play yesterday, when he appeared with a bandaged right arm and a stiff right leg.

Sutter, who eliminated J. Gilbert Hall, New York veteran, in the semi-finals, was expected to show up well against the injury-saddled Allison, but the Tulane youth failed to cope with the former champion's volleying, and made no real stand after running through the opening set.

The Fred L. Duggan bowls, emblematic of doubles championship, were won today by Sutter and E. Ramsay Potts, of Memphis, Tenn. They defeated Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, and Gerin Cameron, of Tulsa, Okla., in a gruelling five-set match, 2-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Marshall Mauldin Plays All-Around Game; Crackers Depart for 16-Game Road Trip.

By JACK TROY. The Crackers used their Sunday punch to floor Knoxville for the count in the deciding game of the series, 9 to 3, before 9,554 customers at Ponce de Leon park.

Knoxville took advantage of a first-inning error and a passed ball to work Dutch Leonard for two runs in the first. They also capitalized on an error to score the third and final run in the third.

The Smokies secured six hits in the first three innings, Leonard buckled down thereafter and with the exception of one inning, the eighth, he turned back the visitors in one-two-three fashion.

All told, Leonard, in winning his seventh game of the season, allowed only eight hits and two earned runs. And his return to form is very cheering to one and all.

INVINCIBLE AS EVER. Ragged support at the start caused him considerable trouble. But after the Crackers settled down to business, Leonard was as invincible as ever. He had the Smokies chasing his butterfly pitch all around home plate. They really needed nets instead of bats. In fact, one Smokie was understood to be asking for nets, but what he said was "nuts."

Departing for Chattanooga where Bill Beckman will open for the Crackers this afternoon, according to Manager Eddie Moore, whose pitching selections are subject to change without notice, the Crackers leave a record of four won and three lost for the week's home stand.

They're off on a trip that embraces 16 games—four each with Chattanooga, Nashville, Knoxville and Birmingham. It's the longest and most important trip of the season, since the club is engaged in a stirring battle to stick in third place. A successful road trip can enable them to dog the footsteps of the second-place Memphis team.

Marshall Mauldin, the Atlanta boy, and Alex Hooks, the two-gun Texan, had on their batting clothes yesterday as Atlanta made its two-out-of-three over Knoxville.

THE MAULDIN BOY. Mauldin, securing three hits in four trips, also stole second twice with sensational swan dive slides and made a brilliant running catch of Blair's drive in right center. He scored three times. He was a swarm of bees to his former Smokie teammates.

Hooks hit two singles and a double out of four trips as he shook off a persistent batting slump. He walked once and scored twice.

The Crackers surged from behind in the fifth, scoring three runs to overcome the Smokies' 3-1 lead, and went on to win in a walk.

Whitehead started the Smokie scoring in the first when he was Continued on Second Sports Page.

60,000 See Yankees Beat Feller, 5-1; Cubs, Giants Win 2 Each

DIMAGGIO'S 24TH WITH BAGS FULL LICKS KID IN 9TH

Bobby's Wildness Hurts in Classical Duel With Charley Ruffing.

CLEVELAND, July 18.—(P)—Slugging Joe DiMaggio defeated blazng Bob Feller in a baseball classic before 60,000 persons in Cleveland stadium today in which the New York Yankee outfielder's ninth-inning home run defeated the Indians, 5 to 1. It was his twenty-fourth of the season and found the bases full.

Feller's wildness was his main problem in a classical duel with Red Ruffing. Bobby walked eight and fanned seven.

Besides his homer, DiMaggio hit a double and triple, driving in all the Yankees' runs.

Monte Weaver allowed Detroit only two hits, but the Tigers scored three runs in the first inning on two walks, a single and two errors to make it two straight over Washington, 3 to 1. Al Simmons hit a home run for the Senators' only score.

Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Tigers, who suffered a triple fracture of the skull when he was hit two months ago by a pitched ball, saw his first game since the accident.

Cochrane is on the retired players' list for the season and has given no indication whether he will resume managerial responsibility in 1937. Coach Del Baker is acting manager.

Cochrane was hit by a ball pitched by Irving (Bump) Hall, of the New York Yankees, early in May.

Ten pitchers took plenty of punishment—with honors nearly even—and when it was all over the Browns and the Athletics had broken even in a double-header. St. Louis captured the first contest, 10 to 6, while Philadelphia bounced back to take the second, 7 to 6.

The White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 5, and 1 to 0, in a doubleheader before 30,000 fans today.

HUBBELL BEATS CARDS FOR 14TH WIN OF SEASON

Grissom Gives Bees Two Hits as Reds Also Take Two Games.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
NEW YORK, July 18.—(UP)—The nip-and-tuck battle for the National League lead between the Chicago Cubs and the New York Giants continued today when both teams swept double-headers.

The Cubs maintained their .003 point margin by wallowing Brooklyn 7-6 and 9-4. Van Mungo was knocked from the Brooklyn box with a three-run Cub assault in the first inning of the opener. Leroy Parmelee weakened in the late innings and the Dodgers rallied to score two runs in the eighth, but Shoun and Root combined to halt another rally after two runs had come over in the ninth. Home runs by Augie Galan and Ken O'Dea featured the Cubs' 12-hit attack. Curt Davis, making his second start of the season, scattered 12 hits to win the nightcap. Galan homered again in the second game.

The Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5 and 11-0. Carl Hubbell held the Cards to nine hits to win the opener, in which Moore's seventh-inning single sent Chiozza across the plate with the winning run. It was Hubbell's sixth straight and 14th win of the season. Hal Schumacher distributed nine safeties to shut out the Cards in the second. The Giants climbed on Lon Warneke for nine runs before he was relieved in the seventh by White. Schumacher, Leslie and Danning pitched for the circuit.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia divided a twin bill, the Phillies winning the curtain-raiser, 5-2, behind the six-hit hurling of Claude Passeau, and the Pirates taking the second, 6-5, in 11 innings. Jensen's long fly scored Lloyd Waner from third with the winning run. The Cincinnati Reds stopped Boston Bees twice, 4-1 and 1-0. Ray Davis limited the Bees to five hits in the opener, then Lee Grissom turned in a two-hit performance to score a shutout. Hafey's triple and Virgil Davis' single in the seventh inning of the nightcap gave the Reds their second win.

20 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

THE FIRST FORD TRUCK WAS BUILT

TODAY... FORD LEADS THE WORLD IN TRUCK-BUILDING EXPERIENCE

The first Ford truck was built July 27, 1917. Because it was built of materials stronger but lighter than those in common use, it combined ruggedness and reliability with low operating cost. Because it was sold in large numbers, its price was low. It was the first low-priced truck of quality, and it met with immediate success. Since 1917, Ford has built more trucks and commercial cars than any other manufacturer... more than four million units. Measured in years or in units, Ford leads the world in truck-building experience.

Such experience has enabled Ford engineers to improve the Ford truck year after year. The 1917 model was 40 horsepower and sold for $800. Today's Ford V-8 Truck gives you 85 horsepower and sells for nearly $100 less. Road speeds of 70 miles an hour... nearly double the speed of the 1917 model... are possible with today's Ford truck. Frames, springs, axles, clutches and wheels have been strengthened for greater load-carrying ability. Safety has been increased by the use of an all-steel cab and Safety Glass.

And as for ECONOMY... today's Ford V-8 Trucks show the lowest ton-mile costs of any truck in Ford history.

Try a Ford V-8 Truck under your own operating conditions. Ask your Ford dealer for an "on-the-job" test of an 85-horsepower Ford V-8 Truck if your loads are heavy... or for light delivery service with frequent stops, try the thrifty new 60-horsepower Ford V-8.

CHAUTEMPS PLOTS NEW 3-YEAR PLAN TO REMOVE DEFICIT

Increased Production, Decreased Hours Are Aim of French Premier.

PARIS, July 18.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps today was developing a three-year plan he hopes will pull France out of her economic difficulties.

will appeal to France to increase production while he and Finance Minister Georges Bonnet attempt to wipe out the treasury deficit in three years.

Increase Production.
The 1937 deficit of 36,107,000,000 francs (about $1,588,708,000) can be met in 1940, he believes, if more goods are produced to circulate more money and bring in more taxes. The problem is to increase production and at the same time reduce working hours.

This Peoples' Front government, like the previous one, is pledged to make the 40-hour working week universal in France, and an even shorter week is the aim of the powerful General Confederation of Labor is an important element of the government's support.

Chautemps is expected to seek a three-way agreement among employers' associations, the General Confederation of Labor and the government to insure industrial peace while the production problem is attacked.

Efforts to Balance Budget.

Immediate measures to balance the budget include increased telephone, telegraph and postal rates, higher railway passenger and freight rates, and taxes in the higher income brackets. The taxes are expected to yield 8,000,000,000 francs ($304,000,000).

One of Bonnet's first acts after hurrying home from Washington to take part in the new government was to unpeg the franc, which slid more than 15 per cent. In unofficial Saturday trading it had declined to 26.37 to the dollar.

Bankers shook their heads and declared the drop in the franc should have been accompanied by a similar lowering of tariffs to keep domestic prices equal.
